Marsh Lists Chief Topics In Legislature

If Oregonians will watch the state's postwar building program, the legislature's action to relieve education of some of the burdens it carries or to toss back onto the shoulders of the school districts those responsibilities, study labor legislation and measures dealing with veterans' rights and problems, old age assistance and liquor control, they will keep pretty well informed on the 43rd legislature. Speaker of the House Eugene Marsh told Salem Chamber of Commerce at its Monday noon luncheon forum.

The legislature may be able to figure a way to make possible plans for postwar building costing approximately $5,000,000, with $1,000,000 of this earmarked for the institutions of higher learning, Marsh said.

Problems of the schools loom large and important to legislators, some of whom believe that state support can equalize the educational opportunities and the costs of schooling, while others declare that local districts must join forces to accomplish this.

Labor legislation to-date centers almost wholly about unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation, he said, outlining some of the measures which have been presented.

The proposed transfer of liquor commission funds into the general fund so that old age assistance may not be "tainted" is not the only legislation affecting old persons and the welfare monies, Marsh pointed out, nor is it the only liquor regulation matter before the legislature.

HELP BUILD FOR VICTORY

Have you ever seen a manufacturing plant that turned snow into war power? Few have. Yet the Portland General Electric Company operates several such "factories" for war power, in addition to being the largest distributor of Bonneville Power. PGE was given the assignment to supply warpower to 67,000 war jobs and 20,000 war farms. Power must reach these vital destinations in an uninterrupted steady stream.

TUNED TO THE TEMPO OF WAR PRODUCTION

Breakdowns and failures must be cut to an irreducible minimum. If necessary, PGE linemen and engineers must work a 57,000 or 115,000 volt line "hotted up." How can it all be done? It just takes years of experience, devotion to duty, and the electrical "know-how." When you're "toying" with 115,000 volts of man-made lightning, there is no substitute for "know-how."
