Ranch Ramblings

Up above Stayton and across the river, some farm property swapping has been going on this past week. Lee Brown bought the Al Brand farm known as the Pietrok place and the farm belonging to Joe and Lawrence Pietrok, but known as the Kiphart place. John Pietrok bought the Frank Studnick place on Bear branch and his son, George, bought a portion of the Frank Thayer farm. Anyway, it looked as if farming would be continued for some time to come in this section.

Down in West Stayton, some cleaning up and brushing around is underway. There are also considerable farm building repairs and then Bill Gilbert built a large machine shed on his farm. This replaces the barn destroyed by fire a few years ago, a couple of cows along with the farm machinery.

At Mt. Angel, the cooperative creamery was calling for the 1940 issue of certificates of interest. These may be presented or mailed to the office for redemption. Any issue prior to 1940 can also be redeemed but none later than the 1940 issue.

If you can't buy them, raise them even if it does take two years. This is the opinion of Harold Bushue of Boring, who is arranging to plant certified Marshall strawberry plants in the Dover area from which he hopes to obtain his planting stock in 1946.

Survivors are the widow, two sons and three daughters, Gerald in the navy, and Aline, Pat, James and Kathleen at home; also three brothers, James and Ned in Canada and Pat in San Francisco.

Recitation of the rosary at the Unger Funeral Home Wednesday at 8 p. m.
