Want Road Oiled—A petition was presented to the county court Saturday by B. L. Carothers and signed by 44 residents asking that the highway between Woodburn and Mt. Angel along with the Woodburn-Molalla highway be oiled as soon as possible. The petitioners set forth that the road is now being used heavily as a farm to market road. The court took no definite action but indicated the work could not be done this year as the program already budgeted does not include it. It probably will be listed as a must job on the 1946 program.

Oregon's Hull Will Be Used For Museum

PORTLAND, March 24—(P)—If the hull of the old battleship Oregon is still afloat at the end of the war it will be returned to its Portland berth and refitted as a marine museum, navy officials said today.

Marshall N. Dana, chairman of the Battleship Oregon commission, said he had assurances from Secretary of the Navy Forrestal that the famous Spanish-American warship would be returned.

The once proud battle wagon, refitted and sent to sea again in the early months of World War II, recently turned up in the western Pacific, where navy officers indicated it might be abandoned.

Pennies donated by Oregon and Washington school children had salvaged the vessel as a museum. Its mainmast now stands near the dockside slip as a memorial to the navy dead of the 1898 battles.

Siletz Children Set Red Cross Fund Record

WALDPOR, March 24—(P)—School children of nearby Siletz set a new record for Red Cross fund campaigns in Lincoln county schools, A. P. Johnson, county chairman, said today. The 250 pupils already have contributed $271.

Oldest Northwest Farm Sold At Jefferson by Mrs. Looney Ends 101 Years in One Family

By Marguerite Gleeson
Statesman Valley News Editor

One hundred and one years of contiguous ownership by descendants of Jesse Looney was ended this week when Mrs. David H. Looney sold the farm north of Jefferson on the Pacific highway which her husband inherited from his father Jesse Looney in 1869.

Jesse Looney filed on the first land claim in the Santiam valley, which the Indians called by the name for beautiful, "Chehulpum," in 1844. His son, David, inherited the place in 1869 after his father had held it for 25 years.

While the land passes from the descendants of Jesse Looney, it remains with the Looney family, having been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Dell W. Looney, descendants of Anthony Looney, a cousin of Jesse. The Dell Looneys are living now on a leased farm in the Knox Butte community of Linn county.

The portion of the original donation land claim of Jesse Looney sold by Mrs. Looney this week includes some 300 acres. Other portions of the original land claim are owned by Marguerite Looney, and her brother, Marion Looney, son and daughter of a brother of David Looney.

The Looney farm has been known for its purebred dairy herd,

Violent Seas Calm Slightly In Coos Bay

COOS BAY, March 24—(P)—Violent seas that have kept shipping at a standstill in Coos Bay harbor for a week calmed long enough today for a steam schooner to slip across the bar.

The craft had stood off shore five days in raging seas that prevented vessels from entering or leaving the harbor area.

A tanker attempted to follow the schooner, but was forced to turn back as seas grew rough and threatened to strand the ship on a sand bar at the harbor entrance.

Witnesses on the waterfront reported a tanker which started to leave the bay yesterday was completely submerged by a sudden wall of water. Although waves turned the vessel as it lost headway in the harbor channel, it returned to anchor without casualties.

Government subsidies on meat, butter and flour, intended to keep down the cost of living, have already amounted to $863,000,000.

admitting she "perhaps should make some plans" she feels there is plenty of time to think about that.

Concrete Pouring Starts At New Co-op Cannery

Pouring of concrete for the new building Producers Cooperative cannery on North Commercial street was begun last week by Barton Bros., contractors. The first floor is to be of reinforced concrete, with frame structure. Facing will be of asbestos board.

Priorities have been granted for acquiring canning machinery and the contractors hope to have the plant ready for use by the opening of the canning season. The new building replaces one destroyed by fire in the early winter.
