

Librarian Talks on Books

On Saturday afternoon the Chemeketa chapter of Daughters of American Revolution met in the home of Mrs. Edwin Jory on Hoyt street.

Miss Eleanor Stephens spoke on some recent books which give emphasis to the fact that our free life is not an accident but an inheritance. Among the titles mentioned were: "When the French Were Here," by Stephen Bonsal, "Young'un" by Herbert Best; "We Stand United," by Stephen Benet; "My Country," by Russell W. Davenport; "Westward the Women," by Nancy Wilson Ross; "Immortal Woman," by Irving Stone and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," by Dixon Wechter.

In the business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Charles A. Ratcliff, a letter was read from the president general, Mrs. Julius Young Talmadge, about the new war projects which the surgeon generals of the army and navy submitted to the society for adoption. One of the projects to cheer patients in the Mayo General army hospital at Galesburg, Illinois, is for the purchase of a wired program distribution system costing $60,000, one of the latest miracles in radio. Every service man will have headphones, a row of five buttons will give him choice of five programs including the main speaker-system of the hospital.

The other two projects concern the navy. One will provide mobile x-ray units for six new hospital ships. These units can be moved to various parts of the ship and are so constructed that they can be taken ashore to be used in isolated places. Each unit will cost $15,000. The third war project will provide another type portable x-ray unit for use on navy hospital ships. This type can be moved to any place in the wards and private rooms. Each portable costs $900. They will be installed on the seven navy hospital ships now in service and on the six new ships now being built. The government does not provide these portable x-ray units.

Mrs. E. A. Jory, chairman of genealogical records told of completing the copying of tombstone inscriptions in the Odd Fellows cemetery in Salem. Her 85 typed pages will be bound with the manuscript of tombstone inscriptions compiled by Mrs. Robert Morton in 1941 and presented to the state library last November. This book, giving the records of all cemeteries in Marion county, will be placed in the genealogical archives of the state library.

Mrs. J. D. Fontaine, chairman of conservation, reported the distribution of six dozen cork acorns received from the national chairman of conservation. As the climate of Oregon is similar to that of Spain and Portugal, where cork trees flourish, the national DAR hopes to develop a new industry in this state.

Mrs. David Wright and Mrs. W. E. Hanson gave reports of the state board meeting of DAR recently held in Portland. Chemeketa chapter won the state prize for the greatest increase in membership. Mrs. C. A. Sprague is chapter chairman of membership.

Mrs. Jory was assisted during the tea hour by Mrs. C. C. Best, Mrs. W. C. Connor, Mrs. Roy Rice, Mrs. C. C. Clark, Miss Ola Clark, Mrs. J. E. Van Wyngarden and Mrs. F. E. Sherwin.

Don't Look Now...

But... looking across the street we saw a woman window washer at the hotel, standing nonchalantly on the high narrow ledge with no signs of a safety belt such as the professional men window washers wear. It occurred to me to wonder why they call us the weaker sex.

Something to remember... three young wives of overseas soldiers were waiting for a place at the table at a local restaurant. Losing their place in line over a technicality they protested their rights to the manager. They were asked "do you know there's a war on?" "Yes," said they, "our husbands are overseas, do you?"

Teatime... funny the difference in people. Going to a tea with our colleague, who sees the pretty dresses and the decorations, we get quite another picture. We see the pretty pattern in the brick walk, those two pansies in bloom already, we see old friends who bring to mind the days when Court street had no pavement and we encouraged unsuspecting newcomers to eat unripe persimmons. We see the lovely new wallpaper, and the pattern in the cream cheese on the canapes, we observe that even the most graceful guests are clumsy in handling the sugar tongs and we always remember the feel of people's hands when shaken.

Not to write about... perhaps, but mighty interesting pictures we think... Maxine Buren.

P. C. Pratts Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary, Birthdays

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Pratt was observed at their home in West Salem during the weekend of March 17, 18 and 19. These dates also included the birthdays of the honored couple. A greeting shower was planned by their two daughters, and they were the recipients of nearly 200 expressions of friendship from relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt are members of the Calvary Baptist church and have given many years of service in its work. They were surprised when they were given an anniversary gift from the church, presented to them at their home by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Durden, and Rev. and Mrs. C. Howard Smith, associate pastor. A floral arrangement given in their honor by their daughters, decorated the church rostrum during the Sunday services the day preceding the anniversary.

A family dinner was served at their home on Sunday. The table was centered with a four-tiered gold and white wedding cake and the rooms were decorated with flowers in shades of gold and yellow. Marilyn and Donald Beard, grandchildren, played piano numbers for the occasion. Present for the anniversary dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Pratt's two daughters, Mrs. Bern Wright, librarian at Parish junior high school and Mrs. Clyde Beard, Marilyn and Donald, of McMinnville. Mr. Clyde Beard, son-in-law, was unable to be present due to his absence from the state, as director of public relations for Linfield college.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were married in Corvallis on March 19, 1895, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. H. Dorward, Mrs. Pratt's father, pastor of the Corvallis Baptist church at the time. The couple resided in Iowa and Minnesota where Mr. Pratt was engaged in banking and the mortgage and loan business, and where their three children were born. Later the family moved west, locating in California, and finally in Oregon, where Mr. Pratt continued in clerical and real estate work until retirement five years ago. Their only son, Dorward Collins, veteran of World War I, died several years ago in Salem.
