Little Fishes

Experts Tell About Putting Down Smelt in Jars. Locker

Calls have come to this office, and to the home demonstration agent's office, on how to can or freeze smelts. We find that if smelt is to be salted, the fish should be allowed to stand overnight in a strong salt solution (2 cups salt per gallon of water, and it's best to use sack or regular cooking salt, rather than the free-running varieties). In the morning, drain well, and then put in layers in a crock or keg, alternating with generous layers of salt, put salt on top and put on a false head or plate, freshen in water when ready to use.

With 18, 19 and 20-year-old men earmarked for the army as infantry replacements for a period of three months, one of the few remaining avenues through which persons in these age groups can enter the navy is by qualifying for the radio technician (radar) training program, it is emphasized by Mel Kennedy, recruiter in charge of the Salem navy recruiting station.

Because of the fact that the fleet is rapidly approaching its authorized strength and the enlistment of 17-year-old volunteers is exceeding all expectations it was decided by army and navy officials to channel the three youngest groups of selective service inductees into the army.

The only exceptions were young men who qualified for radar training, construction battalion (seabee) ratings or combat aircrewmembers, however, are so small that only a comparatively few applications result in acceptances. At present the radar program, however, is wide open. Anyone between 17 and 50, inclusive, who can pass the Eddy aptitude test is enrolled as a seaman first class and given at least 11 months of intensive training in radio electronics. A petty officer rating usually accompanies graduation from the course.

Seventeen-year-olds and men over 37 who can qualify technically and physically for the radar training can be enlisted at once. Those in the selective service bracket of 18 to 37, inclusive, who can qualify and who are not in an essential industry can volunteer for induction and will be given a letter of directed assignment into the navy.

The recruiter suggests that anyone interested in this program come to the navy office in the Postoffice building to determine whether he can qualify. The Eddy test can be taken there by those eligible to take it.

YES! YOU CAN GET EXTRA RED POINTS

MEAT SHORTAGES make saving fats harder these days. But there may be ways to save that you are missing. Won't you please check suggestions below?
Our country needs fats so urgently to help make medicines, explosives, soaps, synthetic rubber and other essentials on the war and home fronts.

- FISH—you're using more of it these days. Scrape every drop of grease from the pan in which you fry or broil it.
- SAUSAGES—they're plentiful and yield lots of grease in the frying pan. (And if you parboil them first, don't forget to save the water and skim off the grease!)
- UTILITY MEATS—are good for stews and soups. Skim the grease as they cook. Chill them afterwards and scoop off the fat that hardens on top. (Gravies too!)
- HOT DOGS—you'll get at least a tablespoon or two of grease from the cooking water. Even a teaspoon helps!
- FAT SCRAPS—save them all in a bowl in the icebox. Once a week melt them down and add them to the salvage can.
- AND BE SURE to keep the can right out where it's handy! Drop by drop, it will fill up faster than you think. Then rush it to your meat dealer and get those 2 red points and 4 cents for every pound of fat. Start today! This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.
