Mart Extends Its Recovery Selectively

NEW YORK, May 19-(AP)-The stock market extended its recovery selectively today after a general bullish week.

Buying still was inspired mainly by post-war prosperity psychology. Many customers cashed profits, however, as the averages equaled their 8-year peak established earlier this month. Volume of 730,000 shares compared with 560,000 last Saturday.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 65.3, which duplicated the highest figure since Aug. 31, 1937, reached May 5, last. It was the fifth successive rise of this barometer. The utilities average scored its sixth straight gain at a high since July 31, 1937.
