

Census Shows Production Up

E. L. Peterson, state director of agriculture, has asked Oregon to join in the observance of National Dairy month. He says that in view of the seriousness of the present food situation full dairy production must be continued, that the maintenance of quality of production in the face of difficult labor and materials situations is a real problem.

And from the state department of agriculture comes the interesting figures which show that Oregon has not as yet fallen down on her dairy production. Farm census shows the same dairy cow population of milking cows of two years old and older on January 1, 1945, as on January 1, 1944. This figure, totaling all dairy breeds, is 284,000 and these produced 1,463,000,000 pounds of milk during the past 12-month period.

Where the decrease is noticeable, is on incoming herds. On January 1 of this year, heifers from one to two years in Oregon totaled 72,000 while a year ago they totaled 78,000. Heifer calves showed a decrease of 10,000 during the past year, now totaling 80,000.

Marion county is the largest dairy county in the state, and dairying appears to be on the increase here. The 1940 farm census showed 17,500 milking cows in the county. At the beginning of this year the count was 20,000. Jerseys predominate with Guernseys second and Holsteins third.

Tillamook, which is usually referred to as Oregon's dairy county, holds third place with 17,000 of two years old and over. Washington county tops Tillamook by 400.

Linn county comes fourth with 16,200. Clackamas counts an even 16,000. Yamhill has 11,500, Polk county, 8500, and Benton, 6000.

Penalty Given Two Dairymen For Adulteration

Approximately $500 in dairy production payments have been withheld from two Oregon dairy producers found to have added water to milk for the purpose of presenting false evidence as to the amount of milk produced and sold to a cheese factory from their herds. This report has been released from the state AAA committee.

No payments were made to either producer for the production period in which the watering occurred. Court action was taken in one case by state authorities. Had the producers received payment for the adulterated milk before it was discovered by the county AAA committee, they would have been subject to the penalties of the United States criminal code for fraud and misrepresentation, the state committee said.

Committee to Be Topic of Talks

Serving of county farm transportation committees by AAA committees will be discontinued June 30, reports R. B. Taylor, chairman of the state AAA committee. Funds allotted to AAA to handle the farm transportation program will be expended at the close of the fiscal year, and additional funds to continue the program were not provided by the federal bureau of the budget. After June 30, applications for farm trucks and for farm gasoline will not be filed by county AAA offices. Farmers will apply directly to local or state ODT and OPA offices after that date. AAA committee authorization for conversion of tractors and other farm implements from steel to rubber also will be terminated.

In Salem Markets

The hog market Tuesday was in about the same condition as for some time past - light supplies meeting free outlet at ceiling price of $15.45. Sows were holding at $13.50 to $14.50. Hogs received at the Valley Packing company plant during the week totaled 139 against last week's 95.

While worry is being expressed by the farm owners of spring lambs, the market appears to be pretty steady. During the week Valley Pack took in 225. Last week's sheep total, it is recalled was 209, of which 129 were spring lambs. Sheep totaled 296 this week. Lambs were bringing 13 cents to the farmer; yearlings 9 to 11, and shorn ewes 4 to 5 cents.

Despite some enlargement in supplies all around the circuit and a weaker trend to values at mid-western points, cattle continued to be scarce in the Salem markets and prices continued to be steady. A total of 63, the bulk out of Portland, were received. Boners and cutters were bringing 4 to 8 cents; common lots 6 to 8 cents; top dairy type, 8 to 9 1/2 cents and beef type, 9 to 12 cents. Veals were bringing 12 to 15 1/2 cents, and bulls 8 to 12 cents.

Bringing in top hogs for the week were John Schindler, R. W. Hogg & Sons of Salem, King Brothers, Ernest K. Werner, and Mrs. E. G. Gerr of Silverton, J. W. Etzel of Stayton, Albert Vachter of Woodburn and Pete Brandt of Rickreall. George Sandner of Stayton brought in a fine veal and a nice lot of spring lambs. Others bringing in spring lambs during the week were Walter Dozier of Scio; Ahren Brothers of Turner; C. A. Mertz of Scio, Bob Marsh of Albany, Jim Jackson of Brooks and Ed and Leonard Doerfler of Aumsville.

Horse Meat Use Small

Old Dobbin in the form of steaks and roasts has not usually been welcomed as the piece-de-resistance at the dinner tables of American Sunday dinner eaters.

While this country has shipped some horse meat to Europe for relief feeding, few horses are being killed for United States consumption. However, the number has shown quite a gain in recent years. Predictions are that it may show more gain yet.

Only a little over 9000 horses were slaughtered in six federally-inspected plants during the first two months of this year. This contrasts with the 15 and two thirds million head of beef, pork, mutton and lamb during the same period. But horse slaughter in the states has been more than doubled since wartime. In 1943, about 57,000 head of horses were killed for meat and last year the total was 552,000. In 1940-41, the average was 22,500. Most of the horse meat goes into feed for dogs and other pets, zoo animals and poultry.

It is nice to recall that the law requires the labeling of all horse meat sold for human consumption.

Hand Picking of Worm Necessary For Tomatoes

Gardeners will find hand picking to be the best control measure for the tomato worm, also known as the hornworm. This large green caterpillar has a wicked looking horn on its tail, but it is harmless to hand pickers. The hornworm feeds on both tomato and tobacco plants. A large one can strip a tomato plant in two or three nights, leaving only stems. Gardeners must guard against the tomato worm twice each season as there are two broods.
