

Churchill in U.S. Tribute For War Aid

WITH CHURCHILL'S CAMPAIGN TOUR, June 27—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today paid new tribute to America's contribution to the British war effort and said the United States "sent millions of pounds worth of munitions all through this war without making any charge for it."

Speaking at Blackburn in Yorkshire, Churchill said America's action was a "noble deed on the part of a great people." Churchill, on a vote-chasing swing through northern England, disagreed, however, "with the view that we were nearly finished or finished in 1941." Yesterday Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told American soldiers at Wiesbaden that in 1941 Britain "was finished and you came along and gave us a helping hand."

Wife Accused Of Defrauding Vets' Families

PORTLAND, June 27—(AP)—A 20-year-old army wife will be tried here on charges of defrauding servicemen's parents by faking pregnancy involving their sons. Rose Marie Moore, whose army sergeant husband is serving overseas, was arrested at Dallas, Tex., accused of obtaining money from people who thought she was to bear their son's child.

A federal indictment, charging four counts of using the mails to defraud, listed passages from letters which the girl is accused of writing: "Dear Mother and Dad—I suppose it's all right if I call you that." "You will never know how deeply I appreciate your help. I am willing to wait for your son forever."

Blazing Attack on Bunker Hill Revealed; Valiant Carrier Lost 373 Dead, 16 Missing, 264 Hurt

BREMERTON, Wash., June 8.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The carrier Bunker Hill lost 373 dead, 16 missing, 264 injured in four blazing hours of bombs and fire during the struggle for Okinawa.

The blackened and torn veteran of all the major strikes since Rabaul, still a fighting ship, lost 70 aircraft to the flames.

Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher was aboard when the enemy hit last May 11. The Bunker Hill was one of the two craft to which he had reference in disclosing recently that he was forced twice to leave warships hit by Japanese bombers in the Okinawa attack. The crew recalls that the admiral stuck with the ship until her fires were under control before transferring the flag.

The fires on the Bunker Hill built a mountain of smoke and the Japanese may have counted the ship as good as sunk.

But the Bunker Hill, which had destroyed 470 Japanese planes with her own planes and guns, supported landings and carried the war to the home cities of Nippon, was unwhipped.

The cruiser Wilkes-Barre moved in one case; two destroyers edged in on the other. More destroyers scoured the sea for boys forced overboard by smoke or flame or blast, and rescued about 200.

Ammunition in the melting planes, parked on the flight deck but not yet loaded with bombs, popped in the flames.

Mass burials at sea were conducted the next day for the Bunker Hill's dead. And when the ship steamed for home and the repairs that would speed her back to battle, there were memorial services on the flight deck with Capt. George Seitz of Coronado, Calif., putting into words the knowledge of the crew that these men "died as only brave men can."

sometimes "it's processing"

After harvesting, comes many processing enterprises that create jobs. IN this new, rich country nature lavishly produced furs, fish, and forests. From them have been built fortunes. This was in the pioneering stage. Now we discover manufacturing as a primary source of jobs and profits. No longer are we satisfied to produce merely the raw materials and ship them away. We are beginning to learn of the enormous commercial possibilities of developing our products to their highest form of usefulness. By taking our raw products from farms, forests, mines, oceans and streams and making them into finished products ready for consumption, we find that the wealth added by manufacture often exceeds the value of the raw products as primarily produced. With its marvelous climate and its abundant low cost electric power, Oregon is undergoing a development in manufacturing which will do much to build a new measure of added prosperity. As in the past, Oregon's industry is developing with the help of pioneering electric utility companies. Let us look to manufacturing as one of the great new "fronts" in the Pacific Northwest's future.
