Low Lumber Piles at Bases

Navy Reports

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 -(AP)-The navy declared yesterday that a lumber shortage threatens to retard construction of advanced bases in the Pacific.

In a statement, it said that cessation of hostilities on Europe had increased rather than decreased navy lumber needs and attributed at the opening. The trade had the shortage to lack of skilled labering areas.

The lumber shortage already has attracted attention in congress 11/2 lower than yesterday's close, and figured in recent criticism of the army's discharge policy by the senate war investigating committee. The senate group urged that and railroad experience. The army has refused, however, to consider any discharges by occupation, contending this would destroy its point system for discharges.

The navy said its stockpiles of lumber have been reduced to "the moved yesterday from the Reims danger levels," adding that "for assembly area to Le Havre, pre- many types of essential lumber inparatory to embarking for the ventories are so low that were United States. The redeployment production to stop, shipments status of other U.S. units was un- overseas could not continue for more than two or three weeks."
