NELSON NEWS

TAILSPINS OR SPIRALS?

That is the number 1 perplexing question now that we are facing peace in place of war. Do we have either? History indicates "no."

W. W. I ended November, 1918. We participated less than one-half as long as we have been in W. W. II. There were practically no price, production, or distribution controls in W. W. I. There had been practically no post war thinking, what reason is there to expect either a sudden spiral or tailspin when Japan surrenders?

In W. W. II we have had substantial controls, having been denied most necessities and luxuries for twice as long as we have been in W. W. I. There were practically no price, production, or distribution controls in W. W. I. There had been practically no post war thinking, what reason is there to expect either a sudden spiral or tailspin when Japan surrenders?

Isn't it logical to presume that we will have a stable economy for many years and that the sensible thing to do in the real estate field is to buy what you need when you need it and pay the prevailing price and to sell what you no longer need likewise at the prevailing price?
