Navy Again to Recruit Men of Military Ages

Reversing a ruling of nearly three years standing, the navy is now accepting voluntary enlistments in the age group formerly only eligible for military service through selective service. Not since December 8, 1942, has it been possible for a man between 18 and 38 to voluntarily enlist in the armed forces. This was the announcement of a new policy of the navy department made Thursday by Mel Kennedy, recruiter-in-charge of the navy recruiting station in Salem.

Under the new plan it will now be possible for men between the ages of 17 to 50 1/2 inclusive to enlist in the navy for peacetime service. Those in the 17 to 30 bracket inclusive, may be enlisted in the regular navy while the older age group will be eligible for naval reserve service.

"Since the announcement of the capitulation of the Japs we have had numerous inquiries from men desiring to enlist in the navy," Kennedy said. "Now we are prepared to answer all questions regarding service in the peacetime navy and to complete enlistments without further reference to the man's draft board. With such enlistments will go all the advantages that accrue to those desiring to make the naval service a career. The navy recruiting station in the Salem Postoffice building is open daily to answer questions of those interested."

Corporal Van Dyke Returns From Europe

Cpl. Kenneth Van Dyke returned last week from the European theatre of war, where he served as a field artilleryman with the first and third armies for ten months. He is spending his 30 day furlough with his wife, the former Eileen Van Eaton, and six months old son, Kenneth, Jr., at their home, 1750 North Church street. He was awarded the bronze medal for distinguished service. Corporal Van Dyke, who has been in the service three years, will report to Fort Lewis for re-assignment.

Juss will have been in the navy six years next December. He was at Pearl Harbor and was aboard the destroyer Henley when it was sunk off Lae, New Guinea, early in the war.

Merchant Marine Seeks Officers And Candidates

The accelerated discharge program whereby millions of veterans will be returned to this country within the next year has increased the need of licensed officers in the merchant marine, it was announced Thursday by Capt. H. J. Tiedemann, Pacific district operations officer for the maritime service. In order to bring servicemen home on schedule, enrollments in the USMS officers school at Alameda remains at present standards. All men with 14 months sea time in either the deck or engine department of an ocean going vessel are eligible to attend the officers school, where a four months course of training prepares an officer-candidate to sit for his license as a third assistant engineer or third mate. Enrollees receive $126 per month, plus uniforms, meals and quarters. Applicants may apply to the USMS enrolling offices in San Francisco, Seattle or Portland.
