

Certificates In Scouting Are Given Patrols

The last fall Boy Scout camporee held in the Cascade area council was conducted last Friday and Saturday by the camping and activities committee of the Marion district.

Under the leadership of health and safety chairman, Glen Julian, and Scoutmasters Frank Merrill, M. Van Driesch, William Covert, Henry Jarvey and Acting Commissioner H. J. Reid, 50 scouts from eight patrols from Mill City, Mehama, Lyons and Stayton participated.

All competition was on a patrol basis, with ratings given in camp citizenship, camping and cooking and patrol organization, with inspection held by judges, Scoutmasters M. Van Driesch, William Covert and Frank Merrill.

Certificates were presented to the patrol leaders in the final ceremony on Saturday afternoon. Patrols and their final ratings were as follows, Elk patrol, troop 50, Stayton, "B;" Owl patrol, troop 50, Stayton, "B;" Wolf patrol, troop 55, Stayton, "B;" Silver Fox patrol, troop 49, Mill City, "B;" Bob White patrol, troop 48, Mehama, "B;" Eagle patrol, troop 48, Mehama, C plus; Owl patrol, troop 55, Stayton, C plus; and the Eagle patrol, troop 50, Stayton, "B."

Harry Michelsen, assistant scout executive from Albany, made the presentations. As an added incentive to encourage scouts to participate in the advancement program, Glen Julian and Scoutmaster M. Van Driesch each completed the requirements for "the" cooking merit badge. These will be awarded at the next district court of honor in the Mehama Women's club house early in November.

S. army, now serving in Egypt, Robert Allen Ball, fireman 2/c, U. S. navy; mother, Mrs. Frances McKinney Ball, Turner; brother, Emir E. Ball, Turner; aunt, Mrs. Onie Longworth, Portland.

Former Residents Of Salem Now Live In Area of Sitka

Mrs. L. R. M. Pierce, Salem, who recently returned from several weeks vacation in Alaska, reported meeting several former residents of Salem who are now living in Sitka and nearby towns.

Mrs. Pierce said at Sitka, she met Mr. and Mrs. Harold Veatch, now owners and publishers of the Sitka Sentinel, a semi-weekly newspaper. Veatch, formerly of Salem, managed Gov. Earl Snell's campaign when Snell first ran for secretary of state.

Also at Sitka is Charles Whittemore, who is operating a men's clothing store and cleaning and pressing establishment. Whittemore was formerly employed in the auto license division of the secretary of state's office.

'Safety Week' Plans Laid by Junior C. of C.

Much of the groundwork, preparatory to the assumption of the sponsorship of Oregon Safety Week in Salem, October 22 to 28, was laid by the Junior Chamber of Commerce at their weekly meeting Tuesday.

Projects to publicize the event, committees to carry out the work and an educational program on the value of safety, were outlined by Wendell Ewing, JayCee chairman of the safety week campaign.

Adam Le For, representative of the secretary of state's office, promoters of the safety campaign, said that Mayor I. M. Doughton would issue a proclamation later this week designating the period between October 22 and October 28 as safety week, and calling upon Salem to participate in the activities of the program.

In explaining the value of safety, Le For said:

"Last year was just an average year, so far as accidents are concerned. And that average year saw 95,000 lives unnecessarily ended, and 9,800,000 persons injured in the United States. The economic impact of accidents during the year totaled $4,900,000,000."

"We do not have complete figures on accidental losses in the states of Oregon, but in traffic alone, there were 245 lives lost last year, and approximately 6000 persons were injured."

Committee appointments included: Radio: Clay Pomeroy, chairman; Harrison Elgin, Wes McWain and Charles Ogle. Publicity: Wes Sullivan and Val Klampe.

Window display: Birney Losmore, Bob Reider, Perry's Drug store, Doug Yeater and Elmo Lindholm.

Street display: Howard Walker, Bob Bowes and Paul Irwin.
