

Harold B. Say Here to Resume State Position

Comdr. Harold B. Say, on terminal leave from the navy, has returned to Salem and will resume his former position as director of the state tourist bureau in the highway department. Mrs. Say, who was in Washington with her husband for the duration, stopped in Eugene to visit their daughter before coming to Salem.

Say, who was a naval reserve officer, was called up in 1941. His first duty was with the press section of the navy. Later he was assigned to handle navy security and continued in this work until the end of the war. It was his duty to pass on publicity and submitted news stories to check them for military security. Two weeks ago, the Saturday Evening Post carried an article by Say on details of the European landings.

The tourist bureau work will be immediately revived under Say. It has operated with reduced appropriation during the war but recently the highway commission moved to increase the funds available so that Oregon's tourist advantages could be publicized.
