Flying Tigers fly strawberries now

1. Twelve Flying Tigers, India-China "hump" pilots and A.V.G. ground crew men came home from the war with an idea. After what they'd learned in China, they thought they could carve out a place for themselves in the air freight business—not as a regularly scheduled line but as contract haulers.

2. They knew they'd need a lot more capital. But that didn't discourage them. They pooled the savings they had, drew up their plans and started beating the bush for backers. Eventually they lined up several Los Angeles businessmen to furnish the additional capital on a 50-50 basis—the veterans to operate the company.

3. With this capital they bought 8 new, twin-engine, Navy-designed "Conestoga" cargo planes from the Surplus Property Board. Then they set up offices at the Long Beach (Cal.) Municipal Airport, named their company National Skyway Freight Corp. and started business August 1, 1945.

4. Today the "Flying Tiger Line" employs 40 men, 38 of them veterans. Its planes, each with a cargo capacity of 10,000 pounds, haul anything, from strawberries to penicillin, on a contract basis. Furthermore, they'll pick up freight any time, anywhere in the U.S. and deliver it anywhere in the world.

5. The company uses Union Oil Aviation Products. But that doesn't seem nearly as important to us as the fact that the boys were able to do what they did. It could hardly have happened under anything but the American "system."

6. Without the profit incentive the businessmen would not have put up the capital. Without the hope of gaining financial independence, the boys certainly wouldn't have sweated out the endless problems of starting a new business. Altogether, we think it's one of the greatest things that's happened since the war.
