

Small Oregon Cities Show Unvaried Gain

Every one of the 38 Oregon cities with a 1940 population under 2000, which requested a new census to ascertain whether they were entitled to additional pro-rata funds, have shown an increase in number of residents, Robert S. Farrell, jr., secretary of state, told the Salem Kiwanis club Tuesday. The gains ranged from 2 1/3 per cent for Philomath to 175 per cent for Milwaukie.

Farrell, who gave the club a thumb-nail sketch of the activities of all the divisions within his department, also said he planned to ask the state legislature to enact a law providing that new drivers' licenses may be applied for during the month of each applicant's birthday, instead of having a single rush for new licenses as would be the case in July of 1947 if present statutes remain in force.

The secretary of state particularly stressed the work of the motor vehicle division and called for more general adherence to traffic laws in regard to automobile lights and drivers' caution. He cited a great increase in accidents and traffic fatalities as proof that his branch of enforcement must receive particular attention.

Other members of the board of control, Gov. Earl Snell and State Treasurer Leslie Scott, attended the meeting.

Today Marks 50th Birthday Of Salem General Hospital; Expansion Program Is Set

Today marks the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Salem General hospital. It was first established in a house on South Twelfth and Ferry streets, long since torn down. The original minute book of the hospital is preserved and discloses the early history of the institution which has now served occupying since 1926 a fireproof structure on East Center street.

The call for the meeting to start the hospital camp from the faculty of Willamette university which was interested in obtaining an institution for better medical care of the ill and for training of their students. The first board for the organization consisted of Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Mrs. R. S. Wallace, Frank E. Hodgkin, Gideon Steiner, George P. Litchfield, W. T. Gray, Frank Davey, H. T. Bruce and A. N. Bush. Mrs. J. J. Murphy was the first president, Steiner vice president, Gray secretary and Hodgkin treasurer.

Contributions from Salem citizens were solicited — furniture and vegetables and groceries. The first superintendent was "Miss Bowman," who was employed at a salary of $25 a month after the first month which was free. She served until Aug. 31, 1906 and was succeeded by Miss Abbie J. Mills whose term lasted until Dec. 1, 1899. After one month's service by Mrs. E. A. Holton, Miss L. McNary became superintendent continuing to Sept. 1, 1920. Miss Lillian MacDonald is the present superintendent.

The minutes show that the first janitor was to receive his tuition (presumably at the medical school), board lodging, laundry and $20 a year in cash. In 1900 "gaslight" was installed at "the hospital."

The present tract of land was given the institution by the Oregon Children's Aid society. For the next 50 years the hospital, which now enjoys rating as a fully standard hospital, plans to be a fully standard hospital, plans to be a fully standard hospital.
