Soldier's Trick Proposal Plan Slightly Snafu

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25. — (AP) — Newspaper readers and radio listeners—millions of them—knew all about the "lost" engagement ring long before the soldier-suitor even missed it Christmas Eve.

The soldier had asked a salesgirl, Miss Betty Kuhn to hide a small box containing the diamond ring in a package of candy he was taking to his girl friend. "That's how I'm going to pop the question," he explained.

But the ring fell out of the box unnoticed while the clerk was packing it and she didn't discover it until the soldier had left. She expected him to return, but when he didn't, she told police and an alarm was spread.

Just after midnight Christmas eve Betty's telephone rang.

"Did I leave a ring there last Saturday?" a voice asked.

"I've been searching for you for four days," Miss Kuhn exclaimed and an hour later the story had a happy ending.

The soldier, Private Walter Sykucki of Chicago, said he hadn't missed the ring until his girl friend, Miss Mildred Operman of Philadelphia opened the candy package and found the empty ring box.

Aghast, he phoned Miss Kuhn. After recovering the ring, Pvt. Sykucki carried out his original plan with the candy and Miss Operman said "yes."

Wool Prices Talk Subject

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. — (AP) — Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) made public today a letter from the OPA saying that a meeting with the wool industry advisory committee to discuss the maximum average price regulation for wool textiles is planned early next year.

Richard H. Field, OPA general counsel, wrote that amendments to the price order already made have eased hardships for manufacturers. O'Mahoney's statement said that this "is disputed by wool textile manufacturers who declare unequivocally that (the order) continues to result in reducing needed men's wear fabrics by some 50 per cent and has increased the production of lighter-weight, lower-cost women's wear materials by the same percentage."

Seattle Pair Given Unexpected Dunking

SEATTLE, Dec. 25. — (AP) — Mrs. Mana Neklowski, 33, and Joe Retzek, 39, went swimming unintentionally yesterday in frigid, oil-covered waters of Puget Sound just off pier 63 and spent 20 minutes in the numbing chill before harbor patrolmen and a sailor effected a rescue.

Retzek was unconscious when the pair was taken ashore. Mrs. Neklowski said they were leaving a ship at the pier when they slipped from the gangplank.

tion service branch here, said most of the Japanese are sailing at their own request, but the government is deporting a few. They are coming from internment camps at Tulelake, Calif.; Fort Lincoln, Nebr., and Santa Fe, N. Mex., he reported.

The public will not be allowed near the vessel—largest ever to dock here, nor will the Japanese be allowed to visit with relatives on the ship or dock, Tomlinson said. About 1300 children under age 16 and 1400 women are expected to be among those leaving. The Japanese will occupy troop quarters, traveling much as soldiers do.
