

DeMolay Seats New Officers, Fetes Mothers

Installation of new officers featured Monday night's mother and son banquet of the Salem DeMolay chapter at the Masonic temple, attended by 95 persons.

Harold Tomlinson, Paul A. Hale, Jack Minto and John Stark installed the group. Roy Hodick was in charge of dinner arrangements.

Highlight of the program, after the installation, was the after-dinner speech of Carl Greider, World War II marine corps veteran, who lost his eyesight at Saipan and came home to help prove that physical handicaps are of minor importance in many jobs which injured veterans may undertake. Greider, who before the war was physical director at the Salem YMCA, is veterans' counselor with the U. S. employment service.

New City Busses Popular; One More Coming This Week

Salem's new busses have met with emphatic approval since their first runs Sunday. The seven new machines are larger and faster than the old equipment and make schedule keeping easier, according to Oregon Motor Stages officials.

Another new bus may be in operation this week to replace one of the seven old machines still in operation. R. J. Davidson, operations superintendent, said Monday. More are to arrive soon and be divided between the company's operations in Eugene and Salem, he said.

Community Auditorium, Field House Advocated by WU Head

If the stadium at the state fairgrounds is fitted up to care for state high school basketball tournament games and crowds, it will be able to accommodate approximately 7500 spectators and will serve only a few years, President G. Herbert Smith of Willamette university told Salem Chamber of Commerce members and guests at their Monday luncheon meeting. He said the stadium probably would be so adapted in time for use next year.

Only permanent answer to the principal problem in retention of the touring for Salem lies in construction of a field house large enough for a growing sports attraction, and Willamette university, which started and fostered the tournament cannot alone manage such construction, Smith declared.

The speaker quoted R. S. (Spec) Keene, long Willamette university sports mentor who now is a sporting goods merchant here, to the effect that it would be "wonderful if all the organizations which could use such a building and are now contemplating erection of buildings for themselves would get together to help finance construction" of a community auditorium and clubhouse with attached field house on the 100-acre park site the city is buying (Bush's pasture).

Tourney Good Publicity The tournament, now in its 27th year, means much to Salem in the way of advertising, bringing to the city men who are leaders in other parts of the state and boys who will be leaders, Smith said. It means much to boys of the state who gain from participation.

Klaus President Of Northwest Ice Cream Group

Fred Klaus of Salem headed the Northwest Retail Ice Cream Manufacturers' association as president today, as a result of an election at a well-attended meeting of the organization at Gearhart last week.

Both service to the public and the maintenance of the highest standards in sanitation and quality were stressed as all-important factors, during business discussions.

Other officers include Frank Humble, Portland, vice president; Mrs. Frank Humble, secretary-treasurer; Kenneth Jette, Portland, executive secretary.

Talks included those given by A. D. Widby, Kenneth Carl and Joe Gray of Salem.

parting in the "big show," and it is part of the sports training which did much to fit men of this country for competition in the war, he maintained. The tournament builds community pride, unity and loyalty, not only in Salem but over Oregon, Smith said.

In its early years it had 7000 total paid admissions; now it has 14,000 during the tournament week and more than 1000 were turned away last year. Northwest conference basketball games this year showed an attendance increase of 203 per cent over those of a year ago, and the trend will continue, he predicted.

Other Cities Bidding Other parts of the state are bidding or preparing to bid for the tournament; officers of the State High School Activities association are being pressed to move it where more accommodations can be secured, and if Salem does not want it, the tourney should go where it will be appreciated, the speaker declared.

Willamette university has reared it from a weak child to lusty manhood and would like to see it find a home in Salem, he maintained, intimating that the university would help in securing such a home although it does not feel in a position financially to undertake the entire burden of building upon itself.

Keene, who now heads the chamber's committees on recreation, was master of ceremonies for the program, introducing visiting coaches and presenting Leslie Sparks, Willamette's graduate manager, with a brief case in which to "carry your troubles this week."

Australian Girl Now Housewife

Pretty, dark-haired Mrs. Russell Christensen, once a receptionist at a Bondi Beach (Sydney), NSW, Australia, beauty parlor, is becoming a Salem housewife.

Fortunate because her husband, a real estate salesman, may be able to find a home of their own for them, she went house-hunting with him Monday after she had been in Salem less than 24 hours.

Mrs. Christensen, who was Marjorie Helen Mitchell prior to her marriage Dec. 14, 1944, and her husband, erstwhile captain in the AAF, are at present with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Christensen, 364 N. 12th st.

Industrialist

A. H. Daggett, St. Paul, Minn., president of National Battery Co., with Mrs. Daggett, was a visitor in Salem on Monday, looking over his company's new plant in West Salem which goes into initial operation the middle of this week. He told a Salem Chamber of Commerce luncheon group Monday that he credits the chamber with the fact that the plant is located 50 miles south of Portland instead of 50 miles north of it.

426 Members Sign for Farm Health Group

Four hundred twenty-six members—nearly half the goal—have joined the Farmers Union Health association, reports given at the annual meeting held here Monday showed. The association is engaged in a campaign to raise $50,000 for the construction and equipping of a cooperative clinic in south Salem.

Harley Libby, president of the association, presided at the meeting. Directors elected were as follows: Four-year terms: Libby, Mrs. Rae Smart; three-year terms: William Linfoot and J. W. Simmons. Two-year terms: Mrs. James Adams and Ammon Grice. One-year terms: Peter Zimmerman and Frank Perry.

Ronald E. Jones outlined the new Triangle insurance program of the Farmers Union.

Attorney William Linfoot outlined proposed changes in by-laws.

Vance MacDowell told of the recent organization at Walls Walla, Wash. of a federation of cooperative hospital and health clinics. Libby told of the progress of the campaign to date and outlined plans for the completion of the drive.

Man Found Hiding Accused After Gas Station Holdup

Herman K. Hudson, 21, 2035 N. 4th st., was lodged in county jail Monday after he failed to produce $2500 bail on a charge of robbery.

He was arrested by police shortly after he allegedly had robbed Doc's service station, 2503 Portland road, of $113. Clement Runer, operator of the station, located police in a nearby restaurant and they found Hudson hiding in the shrubbery at Brooks and Highland streets.

He told police that he had used a rock to simulate a gun after asking permission to warm himself at the station stove.

Labish Center Church Plans Are Outlined

Labish Center, March 12 (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mott became the parents of a son, Thursday, March 7, at Salem. The Motts operate the Labish Center store.

Mrs. Willard McClaugbry was honor guest at a shower Tuesday given by Mrs. Gertrude Zenker at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Leedy are spending the week at their beach home on Taft heights.

The church building board met Thursday night at the home of its president, E. M. Boles. Plans were discussed for soliciting additional funds for the new church building which, it is hoped, will be erected just east of the Harry Boehm place and will be called the Labish Center Community church (Evangelical).

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Klampe and young son are living temporarily at the home of his parents, the W. F. Klampe. They came Wednesday from Vallejo, Calif., where Klampe has been stationed with the navy for several years and where he recently received his discharge. He plans to enter Willamette university.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyl Klampe are painting and remodeling the Kenneth Coomler's house which they have rented near Bell's store. It was formerly occupied by the Ernest Pages.

Soldier Dies In Local Hotel

Gustaf Soderberg, 46, a soldier on furlough from Fort Ord, Calif., was found dead in his room at a local hotel Monday by police who were summoned by a desk clerk who became alarmed when Soderberg hadn't appeared since Friday.

Death was thought to have been from heart attack but an autopsy report had not been returned late Monday. There were no evidences of foul play, according to the coroner's office.

Soderberg's papers showed that he was on 90 days' furlough from the 801st Replacement Bn., in which he was a master sergeant. Only known relative is a sister, Mrs. Hilve Griffin, Boston, Mass.

A car in a local garage, $500 in war bonds, $400 in cash, and clothes in the room were being held by the coroner.
