Today's question: Do you favor continuing the OPA as it is, or with the amendments proposed in congress, or doing away with it?

H. L. Edling, Argo hotel, state representative of the retail clerks union: "I think OPA should be extended for at least a year and all rents should be controlled by it, to keep conditions under control. In the event that OPA is abolished all the contracts we are now negotiating will be open for revision according to clauses in them."

Mrs. Elmer Cook, Kingwood drive, West Salem, housewife: "Price ceilings on certain merchandise prevents it from entering the market. Supply and demand should solve the problem. Sooner or later we will have to revert to it, so we might as well start now and stop OPA completely."

Vance McDowell, 920 N. 19th st., secretary Oregon Farmers Union: "OPA should be kept intact for at least a year until we can catch up in production. It ought to be made to work without the loopholes made possible by the proposed amendments before congress."

Mrs. Paul Poirier, 1445 S. 13th st., housewife: "I think OPA should remain in until things are plentiful again if it takes a year or two. If concerns know that the OPA will stay until that time, I think they will be more free to bring out their merchandise."

Guy McHone, 1771 N. Cottage st., used cars: "OPA doesn't operate efficiently in the used car business. Private car sales aren't controlled at all while dealers have to make sworn statements on every transaction. If OPA were lifted immediately, car prices would go down within a month or two."

Eula Kruger, grocery cashier, 444 S. High st.: "It should be continued as it is. It couldn't be improved and any changes would only confuse people. It helps keep prices down here in the grocery because people have lots of money and will buy scarce commodities no matter what the price is."

ROOF FIRE OUT
Damages were slight, in a roof fire at 1280 Nebraska st., Saturday, according to Salem firemen who put it out.

Celebrating Its 20th ANNIVERSARY

Needham's BOOK STORE

1926 1946

Supplying Salem with the Tools of Business Since 1926!

Twenty years ago this month the ownership of the Atlas Book Store was assumed by W. I. Needham. As Salem in the past twenty years has progressed from town to city proportions, so, too, have our facilities and business grown and expanded. We take the occasion of our Twentieth Anniversary to thank individual and business friends in Salem and the mid-Willamette Valley for their continuing patronage and support. For the future, as in the past, Needham's pledges careful attention to and capable service of the stationery and office equipment needs of our customers.
