Sec. Krug to Let Northwest Decide CVA

PORTLAND, Ore., June 14 (AP) From morning until night a great parade of Portland area spokesmen told Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug here today what they hope for the northwest and what they think of proposed developments.

The burly secretary began the day with a press conference and then opened his doors to conservationists, reclamationists, flood control advocates and just plain citizens.

He planned to fly tonight to Aberdeen, Wash., for a similar appearance in that lumber and fishing city, but bad flying weather caused cancellation.

A group sponsored by the Pacific Northwest Development association told him they oppose the proposed Columbia valley authority, insisting that development can be handled best by existing agencies.

Krug declined to commit himself on the proposed CVA setup. He said: "We must have coordinated development of this big project. Frankly, I don't know whether an authority will give you anything better than you have now."

The northwest must work out its own power needs now for 1950 and later, he continued. He insisted he was here to find out what the people want.

"I don't care what I considered best," he concluded, "if the people don't want it, it's got three strikes on it already."

Fined $100 for Slugging Drew

PORTLAND, June 14—(AP) A deputy sheriff who admitted slugging a fugitive murderer after he was arrested and handcuffed, was fined $100 in circuit court today.

He was Bob Dillon, and his victim was John Drew, sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of another deputy sheriff, Al Bowe. Drew escaped from the county jail, and was recaptured east of Portland by a posse which included Dillon.

Judge James Bain said the fine was heavier than would have been imposed on a civilian because Dillon was an officer of the law. He conceded that the assault was understandable because Dillon had worked under Bowe.

Unions Uphold Referendum

ASTORIA, June 14—(AP) A proposed change in the group's constitution which would have elected officers instead of choosing them by referendum, was turned down before the state Federation of Labor convention closed here today.

Decision to retain the present method came by a close vote, after lengthy discussion. W. J. Entress, Salem, steam engineers delegate, asserted the change would allow officers to dominate the convention, because delegates might "lose their jobs" unless they followed instruction from above.

Bolivia Revolt Unsuccessful

BUENOS AIRES, June 14—(AP) A revolt in La Paz, Bolivia, against the government of President Gualberto Villarroel was put down yesterday. An undetermined number were killed and wounded.

Diaper Expert Lays Shortage to Substitute Decline, More Babies

WASHINGTON, June 14—(AP) A dapper diaper man said today that things look better on the baby britches front this summer, but he warned: Look out for another long, cold winter.

John J. Jones, president of the National Institute of Diaper Services, told a news conference that he was speaking only for the one baby in ten in this nation who wears diapers furnished by the service.

Things are looking up for these kids (who live chiefly in cities of at least 100,000 population). That's because, he said, 20 per cent of the service subscribers are leaving for long summer vacations.

"We'll be able to fill up our waiting lists at last," he said. No, he didn't know what, if anything, the kids would wear while vacationing.

Jones said the diaper situation is rough for all the 2,600,000 babies born in the U. S. each year.

"More diapers are being made than ever before," he said, "but we still don't have enough."

He laid the shortage on two things:
1. More babies.
2. Lack of diaper substitutes.

"Where," he asked, "can you find a flour sack today?"
Uses Handkerchief
Jones whiffed an elegant white handkerchief out of his breast pocket and proceeded to show a method of getting more mileage out of the diapers that are available.

Take the opposite corners of the diaper and fold them in so that it resembles a kite. Then take the bottom tip and fold it up so that it reaches what would be the crosspiece of the kite. Turn down the top.

Plot the youngster down and pin him in.
It's Jones' contention that this gives additional thickness in the middle, or business, portion of the diaper.

Had he ever tried the method out personally?
"Heavens, no," said the man who does the baby's washing. "I'm not a family man."

Mallery to Aid Handicapped Unemployed

A. L. Mallery, senior employment officer, has been assigned as special placement officer for handicapped workers, the Salem U.S. employment service office reported Friday.

Mallery will work in cooperation with Robey S. Ratcliffe, veterans employment representative, and Carlton B. Greider, veterans counselor, in interviewing and placing handicapped veterans.

No special solicitation for jobs for handicapped workers is contemplated until the need becomes greater, the office said, but greater emphasis is being placed on placement of handicapped workers, but veteran and non-veteran, in suitable employment.

Many Salem employers are cooperating with the program for handicapped workers, the USES office declared. Local employers have shown interest in a report based on a nationwide survey which indicates that handicapped veterans on the job have higher ratings than regular workers in efficiency and absenteeism and lower ratings in injury and turnover.

Oregon State Freshman Tells Of Being Abducted at Gunpoint

SEATTLE, June 14—(AP) Thomas R. Blaylock, Oregon State college freshman home for vacation, launched a manhunt tonight when he told police he had been abducted at gunpoint by a man he attempted to befriend after an accident.

Blaylock, 19, told Sheriff Harlan S. Callahan he was walking near his home this morning when he saw a car in the ditch and approached it to offer aid. There was a man in the car, he said, wearing black gloves "but I could see his right hand had been smashed or cut—his glove was oozing blood." He also was bleeding from a wound in the leg, Blaylock said.

Pickup Order
Callahan, who issued a statewide pickup order for the unidentified man, quoted Blaylock as saying he got out his father's car to take the man to a hospital.

On the way, the man suddenly pulled a gun and forced Blaylock, the youth said, to drive through Tacoma and Olympia and around the Olympic peninsula to Port Angeles, where the man jumped from the car after warning Blaylock not to talk.

"During the ride he was arrested by a Shelton policeman for speeding," Blaylock said, and posted $50 for bond. He told Callahan he was afraid to mention his predicament to the officer as the gunman "had threatened to kill me."

"Besides," he added, "I was mad at the cop."

He described the man as dark of complexion, about 35, weighing 160 pounds and five feet eight inches in height.

"During the ride the man told me he was on the spot," Blaylock told the sheriff. "He said he'd been shot in a brawl with a man over a woman in Edmonds. I was sure taken in."

GOP FAVORS LABOR CURBS
WASHINGTON, June 14—(AP) Republican open forums announced a tabulation of 1500 ballots on labor policy showed a large majority of forum members regarded labor unions as "too strong." Many favored legal curbs, including repeal of the Wagner act.

The committee, which must act on the proposal before it can get on the conference agenda, has not yet tackled the question.

The spokesman said that if the committee refuses to report favorably, the resolution will be brought to the attention of the conference by one of the worker delegates.

The proposed resolution has drawn fire from Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach, a U.S. government delegate and from government and employer delegates from other nations.
