Don't Look Now...

but... I felt positively wicked when I spilled a few grains of sugar on the floor and then crunched around on it for awhile. There was a day when I would have shuddered at every crunch, but now I felt justified in getting every little bit of good out of it.

Starting things... A home gardener tips so many experiences. Ours came this week when we opened up a pod of home grown peas and found them all to have square corners. Now many an inventor would give his eye teeth to think up something as practical as that. Remind me to work on this we may have something.

The first fifty years... Up in Seattle they used to have, and may still have, a Golden Wedding club, made up of couples who has celebrated their golden weddings. Once a year they met for an open air picnic in the park and they had a wonderful time.

Little old westerners... We are told that one of the biggest stars of the evening at "Voice of the Turtle" came in the scene which shows three rooms of the New York apartment and one of the actors gets a bottle of milk from the refrigerator. The excitement occurred because Portlanders seemingly were not acquainted with paper milk bottles!

Chew-chew... We looked over those new fangled machines for putting top dressing on the streets and think they do their job very nicely, but where does the tar for chewing come from? Some of the best people in Salem have chewed tar off the best streets of Salem in the old days of heat-it-up-and-pour-it-on...
