VISITORS . . . their whereabouts and of whom they are house guests highlight the social news these days . . . Any number of parties have been given for visitors the past week . . . Mrs. Linn C. Smith had a lovely luncheon on Monday with Mrs. Earl Flegel and Mrs. Thomas Everett May of Carmel sharing honors . . . The former, who recently came from Texas plans to reside here when Colonel Flegel is retired from the army . . . while "waiting" she is dividing her time at the Neskwim summer home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Lee Steiner, and at their Salem residence . . .

Later that day Mrs. Douglas McKay and Mrs. G. Frederick Chambers had a few friends to tea at the former's home for Mrs. May . . . The honor guest greeting her friends in a becoming green and white print . . . her daughter, Barbara, a tall, attractive blonde, coming in for a while during the afternoon . . . Barbara will register for her freshman year at Oregon State college in the fall . . . Another visitor in the capital . . . Mrs. Ruth Newmyer of Oakland, Calif., coming in with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Claude Johns and Mrs. Glen Macey from McMinnville with her two charming daughters-in-law.

Pretty summer bouquets arranged about the rooms . . . mostly white flowers with a touch of pink . . . pink double hollyhocks in a bowl on the coffee table . . . On the table milk glass bowls filled with clementines, sweetpeas and roses . . . Mrs. George Alexander presided at the tea urn and looked smart in a champagne blonde dress and pink hat.

The John T. Luckers and daughter, Joan, are here from Washington, D. C. at the home of his sister, Miss Edna Luckner . . . The James Drury's entertained the visitors and friends at a fish fry at their country place, "Half-Hill" . . . Miss Luckner was a luncheon hostess for her sister-in-law on Friday . . . Toward the end of the month the Drury's and their boys and the Luckner family are planning a camping trip at the Drury's summer place, "Sandune Beach," south of Newport . . . The Fred Pauls drove west last week from Rochester, N. Y. with their three children for a summer's visit here at the Wendell Webb home . . . They plan to spend part of their time at the beach . . . Fred has many friends here as he was star athlete at Willamette during college days . . . He has since obtained his doctorate and is assistant professor of physics at Rochester university.

WEDDING ECHOES . . . Last weekend was popular for July brides . . . Outstandingly beautiful was Janice Lemmon Smith's ivory satin gown . . . a real deep shade, almost a country cream . . . a plain, fitted bodice with long sleeves . . . the entire skirt and deep train fashioned with four inch ruffles of eyelet satin . . . her full length veil of illusion cascading from a small cap adorned with pearls . . . she carried ivory roses . . . Ivory and peach used in the floral decorations at the Presbyterian church . . . the bridesmaids in peach net gowns and the same colors used in the flowers at the reception . . . A sweet note . . . Jerry Kimmell of Portland, one of the attendants, sang before the wedding and during the ceremony sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Lovely was the wedding reception for the Douglas Dragers (Margaret Bell) following their marriage at St. Paul's Episcopal chapel last Sunday . . . Additional guests were invited to the reception at the Harold Olinger home . . . gorgeous flowers, delphiniums, calla lilies and glads . . . The bride's table all white with crystal bowls filled with white flowers and tied with satin bows . . . The punch bowl in the garden . . . and served by Mrs. Clayton Foreman, her usual smart self in a white dress with floral print in shades of red and blue and her tiny flowered hat, which she made herself.

Having the time of her life at her aunt's wedding was little Susan Olinger, dressed in a dainty blue eyelet frock with matching halo hat, and pinned to her waist a miniature nosegay . . . Talk about for Nan Mishler, all in white, attending her uncle's wedding with her mother, Mrs. Ruby Mishler, smartly dressed in black with tiny black hat and furs . . . Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pierce were downy from Portland . . . Mrs. Harvey Quistad was chic in a navy blue bolero suit with red and white stripe and navy blue hat and accessories . . . Mrs. Lester Carter in a becoming steel grey raw silk frock . . . and Mrs. W. Connell Dyer distinctive in a white linen suit and white straw hat with chartreuse bow and white lilacs . . . The newly married couple left amidst a hail of rice . . . their new home is in Lebanon, where they have a darling house, which Margaret has had fun furnishing.

St. Joseph's Setting for Nuptials
The marriage of Miss Donna Tungate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tungate, and Billy G. Kelso, son of Mrs. James Kelso, was an event of Saturday afternoon at St. Joseph's Catholic church at 3 o'clock.

Father T. J. Bernards officiated at the nuptials before a setting of gladioluses, lilies and hydrangeas. Wayne Meussey was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Charles D. Tungate, wore a white brocaded satin gown fashioned with a fitted bodice made with a sweetheart neckline enhanced with a pleated ruffle. The sleeves were long and the full skirt ended in a train. Her finger-

"Holly" Says:

Boy did we sell a lot of diamonds last week, "anything that is good enough for my broker is good enough for me" with these words on their lips and the money in their hands people (virtually) lined up for the next choice. Men's diamond rings, ladies diamond rings, loose stones for easy storing—they all had their lined.

Women brought their husbands and one kindly but firm (that's a modest word) lady said to her husband—"Listen here Joe I helped you earn this money and you can buy your so and so from a certain fellow in the so and so building if you want to but there's no good reason why I should not have a diamond ring and by the way—I'm going to have one before I leave this store or else."

All of which brings to mind the wise words of someone or other . . . "We'd much rather have the woman with us than agin us."
