Vikings Taper Drills For Friday's Opener

Handed a rocking, socking final scrimmage last evening by Headman Harold Hauk, Salem high's Vikings will today breeze lightly through their final workout prior to opening the 1946 season at Lebanon Friday night. The aspirants were battling yesterday for starting positions Friday, and following the scrum Hauk announced his charges would likely line up against Bud Page's Warriors as follows: Ends-Carlos Houck and Bill Hill. Tackles-Don Gettis and Bob Wiper, Guards-Wayne Houser and George Zurlinden, Center-Bob Goffrier, Backs-Charles Robins. Tom Bartlett, Dick Allison and Roger Dasch.

The Viking forward wall will boast an average of nearly 180 pounds and the backfield 160, Gettis and his 220 pounds will anchor the line.

Nary a single report on the Warriors has come from Lebanon, although it is a virtual cinch Page will field anything but an impotent team. Last year the surprising Warriors dumped Salem

We're not taking sides either pro or con in the controversy as to whether negroes should be permitted to play ball in the major leagues but we can't help marvelling at the backbone of Jackie Robinson, the Montreal second sacker and first negro to get his chance in organized ball. Jackie's been sort of a trial balloon in the controversy-and the reaction of players is debatable, the reaction of the fans is more apparent. The flashy negro has drawn em. That is to be expected since the public has always expected of the colored performer that he be a showman or very good at his trade. And Jackie is very good at his trade, as witness the fact that the Brooklyn Dodgers are counting on him to fill a spot in their infield next year, Robinson won the batting championship of the International league this year with a .349 average—but in achieving that feat swatting at curves and fast balls wasn't the former UCLA

One International skipper told his pitchers he would give them a new suit every time they "knocked down" the negro. And being a second baseman, Robinson was a target for many a Beavers walloped the San Franpair of spike. And the guy won the league batting title. . . . .

Branch Rickey, in calling the key-stoner up to the Bums next year, has other plans for him than second base, even though Jackie Seals' PCL lead to two games was acclaimed by many as the top middle-bagger in the minors. over the Oakland Oaks who drop-Rickey figures that if he places Robinson at third or short the ped a single game to Sacramento. colored boy will be less subject to spiking. Feller Overworking?

Bob Feller is working like a demon to smash the major league strikeout record of 349 held by Rube Waddell but we wonder if he isn't overworking. Right new "Rapid Robert" is 28 short of the mark and has an outside chance of doing it before the season winds up. He's starting every four games and doing relief chores in between. And as a consequence he's been belted rather freely of late. The old arm can stand only so much-even Feller's-and we wonder Douglas may miss the San Jose opener. Barbour blamed inability to become enthused over playing football for his move. Backfielder Darrell Lewis also checked out.

Idea of Moguls As 'Pinch Pennys' Ditched--Maybe

STATESMAN SPORTS By allightner, Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 18-(AP)-The manner in which the major league magnates agreed to contract reforms suggested by the players indicates that maybe the picture of a typical club owner as a penny-pinching Simon Legree has been a little out of focus. Nobody realized the great, warm hearts which beat in the breasts of the moguls or the anguish caused by the sad plight of the ball players. Why didn't the owners do something about it before? Why, nobody asked

That might have been the rea-skeptical citizens who might suggest that the Mexican league trouble and the threat of a player's union might have something to do with it. Perish the thought. Anyway, the most interesting innovation at the joint meeting of the club owners of both leagues from our standpoint did not concern contract reforms. It was the formation of an advisory council consisting of Commissioner Happy Chandler, the presidents of each major league, a club owner from each league, a player from each league, and

It is assumed that any problems coming before the council will be settled by vote, which means that Dixie Walker or Joe DiMaggio or any player who might be chosen to represent the players as a group would have just as much to say about such questions as the commissioner. That seems to be quite a far ery from the days when the late Commissioner K.
