Four Students Take Money

Four pupils at the Chemawa Indian school, aged 8 to 14, were identified as prowlers of the John Olthoff home, route 6, box 236, Wednesday afternoon, the sheriff's office revealed Friday.

Following a call to the Olthoff home Wednesday a deputy sheriff investigated the surrounding neighborhood and obtained information which led to the identification of the Chemawa boys Thursday. The juveniles' fingerprints checked with those found in the home.

The four boys reportedly admitted breaking into the home and taking $15, leaving jewelry untouched. According to the sheriff's office report, the boys ran away from the school Tuesday morning and were returned early morning by Salem city police who found them roaming the sidewalks.

Blind Persons Seek Positions

A total of 300 competent blind persons in Oregon are seeking jobs, it was revealed at a conference Thursday at the Salem U. S. employment service office of Clifford A. Stocker, state vocational rehabilitation officer for the blind; Robey S. Ratcliffe, local veterans employment representative and Carlton Greider, veterans counselor of the local U.S.

Operating from headquarters in Portland, Stocker is canvassing communities throughout the state in search of jobs for the blind in the smaller industries. He estimated that at the present 23 industrial firms in Portland were hiring a total of 180 blind persons.

H. M. Manning Dies at Oswego

OSWEGO, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Horace M. Manning, former Klamath Falls criminal attorney who was tried and acquitted in a famed murder case of 1934, died here yesterday at the age of 67.

Manning, born in Jacksonville, was one of Klamath Falls' most prominent attorneys during the first three decades of this century. He retired in 1934, after he was acquitted on a charge of slaying Ralph W. Horan, a state legislator and a fellow-attorney at Klamath Falls.

All of Mark Twain's manuscripts were edited by his wife.

Contract for Bridge Drawn

A copy of a tentative contract between the state, Marion and Polk counties for construction of an inter-county bridge at Independence was received by the Marion county court Friday.

The form was prepared by J. M. Devets, attorney for the state highway commission. The county court took the contract under advisement.

Under the terms of the contract the state pledges to pay an estimated $320,000, or half the cost of the bridge, and agrees to make all preliminary surveys. Marion and Polk counties would each pledge to pay $160,000 or one-fourth the total cost of the structure, and would agree to construct approaches to the bridge, each county to keep up its own half of the bridge and approach repairs.

A petition for an addition to the Vista Heights water district reached the Marion county court Friday and was referred to District Attorney Miller Hayden for advice as to procedure, County Judge Grant Murphy reported.

The petition asking that certain territory south of the city be added to the district is signed by 29 property owners living in the proposed addition. The territory seeking admission into the district is bounded on the north by Vista avenue, on the east by South 12th street, on the south by Fir
