Power Outfits Face Crisis

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 21—(AP)—Cloudy dark days ahead promise headaches for public and private power companies during the peak load hours, the Bonneville power administration warned today in a report that BPA may not be able to supply the additional power. Sol Schultz, chief engineer for BPA, told members of the north-west power pool committee today combined hydroelectric facilities would not equal estimated December peak load demands without the aid of privately owned steam stand-by plants. Spokesmen for the private companies represented at the meeting opposed the proposal they keep steam plants in continuous readiness, but Dr. Paul Raver, BPA administrator, told them public generating facilities would not be overtaxed just to save fuel costs for the private companies.

Industry Job Hiring in State Tops Nation

Industrial employment in Oregon increased twice as rapidly as in the rest of the United States during the first half of 1946, the state unemployment compensation commission reported Monday. While the nation's manufacturing establishments gained 6.2 percent from January to June to employ 14,000,000 persons, Oregon's industrial jobs increased from 105,601 to 118,576 or 12.3 percent. The expansion resulted in spite of a reduction in shipyard employment from 14,813 in January to 7,719 in June. Lumber and logging firms accounted for most of the gain from 42,173 to 54,275. Food processing jobs increased from 16,495 to 20,931, while other manufacturing concerns reported gains of 3,531.

Senior High School
The senior class has scheduled a rally dinner to be held November 1 in the school cafeteria. The banquet will precede the Salem-Astoria high school football game and after the dinner a serpentine will be formed to march to the game. The first speech competition of the year for Salem high school speakers has been scheduled for November 9 at Corvallis. Miss Amanda Anderson is in charge of the speech group.

Delmar Ramsdell, head of the speech department, has announced plans for forming a radio broadcasting club at the school. Programs of the quiz type are to be aired over station KSLM by the group, with prizes donated to contestants by local merchants. Two senior high school clubs sponsored banquets Monday evening. The Paleteers, an art organization, had their dinner at Nohlgren's restaurant, while the Spanish club dined in the school cafeteria. The dinners were the first social activity of the year for both organizations and were for both old and new members. Mrs. Ruth Stinger is advisor to the Paleteers, while Miss Naida Carroll advises the Spanish club.
