Indians Nip Sandy In Extra Playoff

MT. ANGEL, Dec. 13-(Special) -Molalla's Indians had to go into an overtime game to do it, but they nonetheless had what it took and nabbed the annual Willamette Valley league basketball jamboree here tonight before a packed Mt. Angel college gym crowd. Coach Don Wilson's guint first scored a 26-14 win over Canby in their jamboree game and then nipped Sandy high, 13-11, in the overtimer after Sandy had scored a 26-9 decision over Woodburn. The playoff was an extra quarter only

NFL Dominates All-Pros

NEW YORK, Dec. 13-Seven players from the National Football league and four from the All-America conference constitute The Associated Press 1946 All-Pro team announced today.

Two stars from each circuit comprise the backfield. The four backs are Bob Waterfield of the Los Angeles Rams, Glenn Dobbs of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Orben (Speck) Sanders of the New York Yankees and Ted Fritsch of the Green Bay Packers. The backfield averages 201 pounds.

The All-Pro line, boasting an average of 221 pounds, includes two standouts with the Los Angeles Rams, giving the 1945 pro champions three places on the mythical play-for-pay eleven. They are End Jim Benton and Guard Riley Matheson. Other linemen are End Jim Poole of the New York Giants, Tackles Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of the New York Yankees and Al Wistert of the Philadelphia Eagles; Guard Bill Radovich of the Los Angeles Dons and Center Clyde (Bulldog) Turner of the Chicago Bears, western champions in the National Football league.

The much-talked about mismatch at the armory the other night when Eddie Wharton, Portland's elongated negro lightweight disposed of Bally-hooed Newcomer Billy (The Kid) Fritz with ridiculous ease brings to the fore the point that boxing promoters have their troubles, too. Tex Salkeld, who had arranged the match, had been informed by various and sundry parcels of publicity that Fritz was a most capable ringsman, that he'd give Wharton the tussle of his life. Omitted from these reams of praise sent out by Fritz' manager, Joey Dolan, . and others was the slight detail of height. Now Wharton must stretch to around the 6 foot mark at least-and if Fritz was much over 5 feet tall we'll give up a couple of T-bone steaks. The dis-paragment in height made it a comic scene, and EDDIE WHARTON yet perhaps a pathetic one as the lanky negro stuck out that irritating (to Fritz) long left of his time and again, with the New Jersey lad not being able to do much about it. Just too much reach.

Salkeld Surprised

Salkeld himself was as much surprised as anyone in the armory at the situation. It was an extremely smelly morsel for him to digest. also. As for Fritz, get him in the ring with a guy along about his own size and he'll give a good account of himself. He appeared to know what his gloved dukes were meant to do.

Still concerned with Wharton, it's too bad Snooks Lacey can't push the scales up another eight pounds. What a nifty of a duel if Lacey and Wharton were thrown at one another. Both fast, sharp, hitters, with Lacey perhaps the more shifty.

Speaking of size and weight differences in the roped square remember the lime "Leo the Lion" Turner, middleweight that he was, went against local heavyweight hope Keller Wagner and cut him to pieces? If the little man is good enough-and usually he has to be fast enough-he can dominate a match. But we suppose the old adage, a good big man can beat a good little man, still goes. At any rate when a guy lays his dough on the line and picks his man Knights of Columbus (2) from among two untested prospects, he's going to be particularly favorable to the bloke with the most bulging biceps. Which bring Epping to mind the conjecture that a good many simoloens must have gone down the drain when Primo Carnera first started his checkered and mostly negative ring career. . . .

Too Many Big Beavers

"Worst beating I ever took." said Elmer Schaake, the Bearcat Rowan hoop mentor, after that 66-29 drubbing at the hands of Slats Gill's Talmage Oregon Staters the other night. Consolation for Elmer lay in the Busick's Market (2) fact that he was beaten by what stacks up as a very potent club. Brent Again it was size that probably made the difference. Pretty tough Morris for an outfit of hoopsters averaging not much over six feet to combat on even terms with ozone-stretchers like 6" 8" Red Rocha and Haagerson 6' 7" Doug Martin, to name a couple. . . . Figure the Bearcats to make a closer cuntest of it tonight on the Willamette floor. . . . Salem Modelers (1)
