STORM

Old Man Weather can be mighty tough on telephone lines, especially in the High Sierras and Cascades where snow often piles high enough to cover poles completely and ice builds up several inches thick on wires. But when a major break occurs, crews of telephone workers swing into action fast . . . and with some rather ingenious equipment.

A snowplow like this one, powered by an airplane motor and propeller, can carry two men and considerable material on trails which would be impossible for trucks. Other expert mountaineer workmen speed to the break on snowshoes and skis. As a special safeguard against sudden storms, well-equipped shelter huts have been built along mountain lines.

Enough men rush to the job to keep repair work going without stop . . . in the meantime, calls are immediately rerouted whenever possible. And sooner than you might imagine, the damaged lines are in use again. For here, as in everything we're now doing to grow with the West, telephone people work with a splendid spirit of service and teamwork . . . and always with you in mind.
