Work Students To Entertain 1/2-Day Bosses

Approximately 30 young Salem residents who combine their high school studies with regular employment in the city will entertain their employers with a banquet at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday in Nohlgren's restaurant.

The banquet sponsors are enrolled in the distributive education section of vocational training in Salem high school, in which they attend classes half the day and work in such places as restaurants, offices and stores the remaining half day.

William Baillie, manager of Salem's office of the state employment service, will be banquet speaker. Ronald Sheets will play a vibraharp solo. Phillip Janz, one of the student-workers, will be toastmaster, and Merritt Larsen, president of the school's distributive education club, will introduce guests.

Mrs. Maxine Kent is the teacher-coordinator in charge of distributive education. The program is open to high school seniors who take some regular classwork and a retail selling class at school. They receive school credit as well as regular pay for their jobs and are eligible to graduate with their class if grades are satisfactory. A model store unit at the school facilitates specialized study, and merchants of the city loan merchandise for this feature of classwork.

The Rev. Orville Nick, pastor of the Albany Christian church, will conduct the service. Bearers will be Herbert Looney, Robert Terhune, Walter Watkins, Jack DeVaney, J. H. Hadley and W. A. Gilmore.

Burial in the Miller cemetery at Shelburn.

Born Oct. 28, 1885, on the farm four and a half miles southeast of Jefferson; her parents, Alfred N. and M. Blanche Goin, were early pioneers of '64 and '65, coming to Oregon by ox team from northern Missouri. She attended the DeVaney school and had lived on the Goin farm north of town since 1901.

For many years the Goin farm was known for its choice dahlias; and the Goin fruit stand was known far and wide, offering for sale fruit raised on the farm.

Miss Goin was a member of the Baptist church. Survivors are two brothers, Varion E. Goin of Jefferson, and Dr. J. W. Goin of Albany; several nieces and nephews; also a aunt, Mrs. Anna Stayton, who lacks one month of being 96 years old, who resides at Stayton.

Willetta Jane Miller — Funeral services for Willetta Jane Miller were held Sunday with burial in the family plot in the Masonic cemetery here. She died just two weeks before her 100th birthday. Final rites were by the Rebekah lodge of which she was the oldest member in the state. Born in Zanesville, Ohio, May 18, 1847, Mrs. Miller lived here for 70 years. Survivors are two sons, Dr. Rolland Miller and Howard Miller, both of Lebanon.

High School Typists To Vie Here Saturday

Capital Business college will sponsor its annual typing contest for high school typists of Marion, Polk and Linn counties at 10 a. m. Saturday in the local business college.

Winning school will receive a trophy cup from the college. Jefferson High school, which now holds the trophy, and Woodburn High, a previous winner, are now eligible for permanent possession of the cup if either school wins.

Building Okeh Given Larmer

Construction of a new four-story warehouse for general storage purposes was approved Monday for D. A. Larmer of Larmer Transfer and Storage, Salem, by the Civilian production administration in Portland.

Larmer plans to build the $90,000 structure to the north of his present warehouse on Broadway street.

Associated Press reports the following other CPA approvals for Salem projects: Western Paper Converting Co., a $3450 machine shop, and Warren Doolittle, a $7500 truck service station. C. H. Hoyt of Silverton obtained approval for an $18,000 warehouse.

Observance Urged For Mother's Day

Observance of Mother's day, Sunday, May 11, was urged Monday by Acting Gov. Marshall E. Cornett.

"It is a pleasure," Cornett said,

"to lend my support to this traditional observance and to ask the citizens of Oregon to make use of this opportunity to acknowledge in some small degree the care, affection, devotion and hard work of mothers everywhere."

First Aid Wagon Incapacitated by Hidden Ailment

Salem's first aid car is going to the hospital as a patient today, following an undetermined ailment which developed Monday afternoon while taking Paul Walrath of 456 N. 18th st., to Salem General hospital, First Aid Capt. Arthur M. Bloom reported.

Walrath is reported "resting comfortably" at the hospital after incurring injuries when a log fell on his foot while he was working for the Burkland Lumber Co. at Turner at 3:40 p. m. Monday.

Meanwhile, the first aid car, still in condition to make extreme emergency runs only, is suffering in silence until city "doctors" can undertake a diagnosis at the municipal shops today.

MAY 11th IS Mothers' Day

Every son and daughter knows that a white flower—a carnation when available—is the nationally accepted symbol of love and honor to mothers in memory. A family or individual monument, fashioned from one of the Rainbow Granites, is another fine tribute to mothers; one that will endure beyond the memory of sons and daughters or the youngest grandchild of today.
