

Property Owner Given Permission To Tap City Main

A. R. Thompson, who has property just outside city limits near Hillcrest school, received special permission to draw water from a city main near his land after a city council discussion Wednesday night on the policy set last year to deny city water to outside areas not seeking annexation to Salem.

The council voted 5 to 3 to consider Thompson's special case and give him necessary authority after City Manager J. L. Franzen explained that Thompson had purchased 800 feet of two-inch water pipe last fall in the understanding that area would join the city or he would get special permission for the water line to enable him to develop a home on his property.

The council decision was opposed by Aldermen Gille, Jorgensen and Fry, who expressed the opinion the city should be consistent in its policy.
