

Marion County To Micro-Film Records Soon

Over 75,000 old, valuable recorded instruments filed in the Marion county clerk's office and containing the only valid legal record of the county from 1848, soon will be safely recorded on micro-film.

County Clerk Harlan Judd said this week that he hopes to get the job done during the office's slack season of July and August. Other county offices are expected to follow suit. The county's last budget session allowed $2,800 for the filming of all county documents that needed to be preserved.

To Save Space
Object of the filming is to preserve the documents and to save space in county vaults—which are already packed to overflowing. The ratio of space-reduction of the original papers to the filmed reproduction is about 350 cubic inches to one, Judd estimated.

As insurance against war damage, journals and books of records were micro-filmed in 1942. But that only took care of about 10 per cent of the total, Judd said. He then pointed out that only the folded, bulky records filed prior to 1921 will be filmed. Since 1921 originals have been "flat-filmed" in satisfactory space-saving cabinets, and these will not be filmed for several years, he said.

Includes Documents
Records to be filmed include 16,000 circuit court trial and action cases, 30,000 marriage certificates, 30,220 probate papers, and several hundred miscellaneous items. Following the duplicating process, the old files will be turned over to the state archivist.

About a month will be necessary to complete the job in his office, Judd said. The work will be done by clerk deputies, trained by the company furnishing the filming equipment. No company has been named yet. It is estimated that each circuit and probate case will require about two feet of film and that 50 marriage certificates can be printed on a foot of film. Film can be purchased at $6 per 100 feet (which will print 2,000 images), as against the equipment company's contract price of $35 per 1,000 images. The micro-film machine can be rented for $75 per month.

State Masons Elect Ransom

Roy Larson of State Agriculture Department Dies

Roy Larson, of the state department of agriculture livestock division, died Thursday morning at his Portland home after a heart attack.

With the agricultural department since 1930, he had previously been with the state traffic department.

He was active in enforcement of the so-called "gasoline cowboy" legislation enacted to combat modern cattle rustlers. In the cattle theft office, he served under the late Dr. W. H. Lytle, livestock division director, and continued after Lytle's retirement.

Larsen was widely known among livestock men and law officers.

His widow, Alta Larsen of Portland, survives.
