It's been many a year since the railroad bridge over Willamette river here has been opened to make way for a river boat, but nevertheless new rules concerning such openings are going into efrailroad bridge over Willamette Jimmy such openings are going into effect July 19.

Local officials of the Southern Pacific Co. have received notice from the war department that the SP-requested change to require longer advance notice under normal conditions for opening the bridge has been accepted.

Now when river stages are below 20 feet, opening of the drawspan (except for the periodical test openings) must be requested 24 hours in advance from Southern Pacific dispatchers in Portland or the office of Freight Agent W. E. Burks in Salem

At higher river stages, the drawspan is to be opened immediately, when a vessel requires it, upon a signal consisting of one long blast followed quickly by one short blast or upon verbal request.

At present clearance under the bridge is ample for river tugs and pleasure boats which now constitute the only Willamette river navigation. Years ago bigger riverboats of the excursion vessel mental account filed.
