Time for Filbert Moth to Appear Says Entomologist

The filbert moth, one of the worst pests in nut orchards, will emerge soon from the pupal state. Growers must spray the moth soon after it emerges, if control is to be effective.

To speed up control, county agents will be telephoned the day on which emergence of the moth is first observed, says Robert W. Ewert, extension entomologist at Oregon State college. The information will be passed to the grower immediately. The moth usually emerges from its pupal state around July 10.

Dr. B. G. Thompson, entomologist at the state college experiment station says that if DDT dust or spray is used against the moth, some benefit may be obtained by spraying or dusting the ground beneath the tree, as well as dusting or spraying the trees. He adds that some moths will be killed as they emerge from the ground if it has been treated in this fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Phillips are spending a few days in Walla Walla, Wash., as guests of friends. They will return Sunday.

Long-Link Vows Are Performed

MONMOUTH—Miss Virginia Louise Link, of Monmouth, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Earl Kent of Fort Knox, Ky., became the bride of Orvid Gale Long, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Long of Independence, at a ceremony July 8, at 8 o'clock in the Woman's club building at Independence. The Rev. C. O. Heath read the service before an altar decorated with white gladioluses and silver candelabra. Miss Leona Johnson of Portland, cousin of the bride, lighted the candles. Mrs. Florence Hutchinson of Monmouth played the wedding music, and Mrs. Richard Van Den Bosh of Dallas sang.

The bride wore white satin made with tight bodice and full skirt, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. Her fingertip length veil was caught into a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a white bible marked with gardenias and bouvardia. Miss Sheila Link was her sister's maid of honor and wore pink marquisette made with full skirt and tight bodice and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations and white sweet peas.

Ray Duncel of Independence was best man. Seating the guests were Logan Wallace and Norman Jensen of Monmouth. Mrs. Kent wore gray with black accessories and yellow carnations, and Mrs. Long wore aqua with a white corsage.

A reception followed. Miss Katherine Arbutnot of Monmouth presided at the coffee urn, Mrs. Carl J. De Armond cut the cake, and Mrs. Howard W. Morlan presided at the punch bowl.

Both the bride and groom have been attending Oregon College of Education and will continue with their studies after taking a short trip. He was recently released from naval service.
