The man made many friendly enemies during his oft-stormy days as commissioner of all minor league baseball - never will we forget the flery and costly blasts we got from him in 1942 when we signed the penitentiary's Luke Crosswhite to pitch for the Senaters but Judge W. G. Bramham Tpesday died a respected baseball man. Not unlike the late Judge Landis, the minor leagues cuar delivered his ultimatums like a gruff old bear. He spared no one's feelings. The baseball book was his law and if you broke that law you heard of it in no uncertain terms. His two and threepaged telegrams to us flatly re-fusing to allow Crosswhite into professional baseball ranks actually are what gave us what curly hair we have. Yet when we met the judge last December during baseball convention in Los Angeles he was jovial in spite of his sternness. The tipoff on the Umps Tattled to Teacher While on baseball caars it might be well to mention to those who attended last Sunday night's Salem-Wenatchee doubleheader that WIL Prexy Bob Abel has done some knuckle rapping himself. Seems those two characters who loused up almost the entire series—Day and Slavich by name—tattled to the president that they weren't treated nicely during their stay in Salem. Their feelings apparently ruptured, the bandeetos told teacher that the Waters park announcer called them "characters" instead of umpires. So teacher informed Bus. Boss George Emigh all such stuff had to stop in same Waters park. No doubt the way his umpires were treated here, but he should drop down mext time that pair is in town to see just how unhappy they make not only the members and managers of both teams but also the customers who pay their way into

Stetter in Tough Luck

Candidates for the league's tough luck player of the season-Glenn Stetter, the villager with Tacoma who last year led the league in hitting for Wenatchee. Glenn started out the campaign with a badly sprained thumb and his hitting suffered. When the thumb was okeh he tore ligaments in a leg and on the shelf he went again. This finally whipped, Stetter began banging the ball hard and climbed up to around the .340 mark. But lo, came another wound. Both sides are confident of victory and have been practicing mule-herding all week so as to be in top shape for the gigantic. The team members will do their chores astride trained jackasses which are just as apt to make like bucking brones rather than shag after fly balls to the outfield. Regardless of what either the donkeys or players manage to do the entire show is certain to be highly entertaining and loaded with laughs.
