

Disarmament Vies with Military Might in Public Forum Debate

By Robert E. Gangware
City Editor, The Statesman

Whether the road to peace must be built on United States leadership bulwarked by its strength of arms and trained citizenry or on a world security based on general disarmament was the principal contention in a public forum on proposed U. S. universal military training Tuesday night at Waller hall.

Opposing views were presented in talks by Rex Kimmell, Salem American Legion and veterans' affairs leader and deputy state attorney general, who favored disarmament, and by John M. Swomley, acting director of the National Council Against Conscription, secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and Methodist minister who formerly was vice president of the National Council of Methodist Youth. Salem members of the reconciliation group and others opposing conscription sponsored the forum.

A discussion period followed, with spokesmen for an audience of 200 predominantly against universal military training questioning both speakers and pointing mildly heckling statements at the position supported by Kimmell.

Kimmell maintained that peacetime conscription was essentially democratic and an obligation of citizenship, would "attune American military policy to its foreign policy," would provide continuing national security and at the same time would put needed power behind the United Nations delegates of democratic countries and thereby hasten world peace.

Kimmell asserted this nation, "in this era of realism," must retain military strength rather than rely solely as in the past on "pious appeals to dictators who recognize and respect only force."

In his rebuttal talk Swomley declared regimentation of youth was neither democratic nor stimulating and would lead to war by creating "war psychology" and discouraging disarmament, that peacetime conscription never had guaranteed peace or security in the past and that the United States already has the upper hand in military strength.

Swomley asserted the present U. S. military forces plus conscription would mean militarism on far greater scale than either Japan's or Germany's at the outset of World War II.

Silverton Tavern Operator Files Appeal from Ruling

Appeal was filed in the state supreme court here Tuesday in a suit brought by Leonard Gouge, Silverton, to recover damages from Victor Davis, Marion county District Attorney Miller Hayden and Sheriff Denver Young, for false arrest.

Gouge, formerly operator of a tavern at Silverton, contended he was arrested by Sheriff Young for not having a proper license. The Clackamas county circuit court, with Judge Earl Latourette presiding, held for the defendants whereupon Gouge filed notice of appeal.

Time for arguments in the supreme court will be set later. Acting Chief Justice Hall S. Lusk announced.

The state department said in a formal statement that this trial and conviction was a "travesty on justice." It said the trial was only one of "a series of measures undertaken by the communist-dominated fatherland front government to remove from the Bulgarian scene all save a purely nominal opposition and to consolidate, despite its professions to the contrary, a totalitarian form of government."

Defense lawyers said they would complete their rebuttal tomorrow, employing about four witnesses. The jury will be taken to Newport Thursday morning to view the blasted cruiser, the Mary E, which is in a boatways.

Final arguments will begin Monday and the case will go to the jury some time Friday, trial Judge Kenneth E. Morrison estimated.

PORTLAND, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A municipal judge ruled today that it was an act of intimidation for a picket to photograph a man going through a picket line.

Judge J. J. Quillin in the ruling dismissed an assault charge brought by the picket, Walter Lodewick, against Merton Parker, 51.

Parker told the court he may have grabbed Lodewick's camera and "may have" hit him, and added that he had been out of town and did not know of the strike against the Leupold and Stevens Instrument company plant.

The judge said that besides intimidation in photographing, "the matter of the right of privacy must be considered."
