Breakfast Clubbers Hear Story Of World Series from Lightner

World Series lore and ham and eggs were on the menu for some 100 persons Friday morning as the Salem Breakfast club met in a 7:30 session at the Marion hotel. It was the second meeting for the recently revived athletic booster group.

Feature of the breakfast was Statesman Sports Editor Al Lightner's first-hand account of the World Series. "The Yankees had the class," said Lightner, "with the Brooklyn Dodgers extending the series to the full limit only by reason of the scrappy and unpredictable brand of ball they played."

The Statesman sports scribe described the drama and color attendant to the heart-breaking one-hit contest which pitched Bill Bevens of Salem lost to the "heart" displayed by "Bev" and painted a vivid picture of doings in the clubhouse after the games. The local writer also was close at hand for the famous "Battle of the Biltmore" — occasion, the Yankee victory party — and willingly confirms that Larry MacPhail is just as hot-headed and voluble as the papers say he is.

Speaking of Bevens, Lightner concluded with: "Just know that Bill Bevens deserves everything you can give him in the way of a homecoming welcome."

Harry Collins, club president, advised the group that a "Bill Bevens Breakfast" has been set for next Friday morning.

Ira Pilcher, Salem Booster club president, announced the Boosters will merge with the Breakfast organization. The majority of members of the Salem Dad's club have also joined the new group, revealed Cliff Parker.

Clara Parrish, 74, daughter of an early Oregon pioneer family, died Friday at her home, 1455 Waller st., and funeral services will be held next week.

Widow of the late Hogue Parrish who died many years ago, Clara Parrish was born near Scio. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Darby, came to Oregon by covered wagon in 1852. Her mother was the former Harriett Fandford. Ten children were born to the Darby family.

Married in Sodaville, the deceased and her husband came to Salem about 30 years ago. She was a member of the First Christian church and of the Ladies of Woodcraft.

She is survived by a son, the Rev. Linton Parrish of Wieser, Idaho; sister, I. N. Howe of Salem; four brothers, Ben Darby and Robert Darby of Scio, Roland Darby of Middletown, Calif., and Linton Darby of Springfield, Ore., and two grandchildren.

Farrell Predicts Traffic Toll Rise As Year Wanes

Early darkness, rainy weather and traffic congestion in cities will combine to increase the traffic death rate in Oregon during the remaining months of the year, Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, jr., warned here Friday.

Oregon's worst death month, Farrell said, was November 1936, when 58 persons died as a result of traffic accidents. There were 56 fatalities in December, 1946.

Although 1947 deaths are trailing last year's record breaking fatality list, unprecedented traffic volumes can reverse the situation almost overnight, Farrell said.

6 Garden Clubs To Enter 'Fair'

Six garden clubs have already signified their intention to compete for honors in the forthcoming "fall fair" to be held in the show rooms of the Valley Motor company here Saturday and Sunday, October 25 and 26, according to Chas. McIlhinny, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. The "fair" which is being sponsored by the Salem Men's Garden club will feature vegetables as well as fall flowers, McIlhinny said.

Captains of the ten teams in the Salem club are making elaborate preparations for the intracub displays which will be an outstanding feature of the fair.

There will be no admission charge to the fair but expenses will be defrayed from the proceeds of auctions to be held each afternoon and evening at which time choice shrubs, plants and bulbs donated by club members will be sold.

Rites Today For Mrs. Seitz

Funeral services for Mrs. Ruby Tenner Seitz, 1349 Mission st., who died Friday at a local hospital will be held at 1 p. m. today with the Rev. George H. Swift officiating.

Mrs. Seitz was the widow of the late R. W. Seitz, music professor in Salem for many years. She had been in ill health for the past several years.

Born in Franklin, Ohio, in 1879, Mrs. Seitz had been a resident of Salem for about 30 years. She is survived by two sons, Ralph A. Tenner of Coral Gables, Fla., and Armin L. Tenner of Portland.

YW Meeting To Emphasize Membership

Membership and its part in the program of the YWCA will be featured in the program for the open meeting of the Salem YWCA board Tuesday morning.

The board members will hear business reports at 9:15 a. m. At 10 o'clock there will be a coffee period, followed by a meeting for all interested YWCA members.

Mrs. Harold A. Rosebraugh, board president presiding, Mrs. Stearns Cushing, jr., will give the devotions, Mrs. F. W. Baum, membership chairman, will outline future plans and types of membership. Mrs. C. W. Parker, vice president of the board, will discuss membership fee sharing. Mrs. W. H. Barber of the membership committee will talk on membership policies and admission of men members. Mrs. Esther W. Little, executive director of the YW, is to talk on membership and the new building and expanded program.

On November 14 the association is to sponsor a benefit smorgasbord, at the YMCA building as a public event. Proceeds will go to the world work fund of the YWCA.

Mrs. Earl Barham, the newly named chairman of world fellowship on the YW board, is in charge of the smorgasbord.

Rex Putnam To Preside at Education Meet

Two representatives of the Oregon State Education department will participate in the national conference on rural education to be held in Ann Arbor, Mich., October 27 to November 5.

Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, will preside at the meeting. He is president of the national council of chief state school officers, Miss Florence Beardsley, director of elementary education, state education department, will attend the conference as Oregon's delegate with all expenses paid by the council.

The conference, first of its kind in the United States, will deal with rural school problems. Putnam said it generally was agreed by educators that education in rural areas has not been on par with that of urban communities.

Old Drivers' Licenses Void

All Oregon motor vehicle drivers' licenses below 6 R-132,000 are now void, Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, jr., announced here Friday. He said licenses numbered between 5 R-132,000 and 6 R-165,000 expire this month.

Drivers' permits issued before June, 1947, bear the 5 R prefix, Farrell said, and expire in accordance with a schedule available free at service stations, police stations, sheriff's offices and drivers' license clerks. Examinations are not necessary for renewals of these licenses.

Farrell said many drivers have paid fines because of not having current drivers' permits. Road checks of licenses by state police are being continued.

Reporting-Date for Jury Panel Delayed
