SPORTSLIGHTNER

Just about a year ago, after Al Simpson's Southern Oregon Red Raiders smashed Monmouth's OCE eleven 52-9 we tattled here that the potent SONS could have made it 100-0 in that game. Our popularity in Monmouth hit a sub-zero level after that offering. Again this season we officiated the grid struggle between the two schools and would again like to report the truth. This time the Monmouths, defeated 20 to 0, actually outplayed the Raiders and were entitled to bring back the win instead of the loss. Two long passes and a sudden 90-yard sprint by the widely-known and entirely capable Chuck D'Autremont amounted to all the scoring. But time and time again the Wolves romped through the Raider defenses to threaten a score, only to have a fumble or an ill-fated play kill off the threats. In total yardage from scrimmage the Monmouths outgained the Simpsons, and in Backs George Redden, Corky Van Loo and Robin Lee they had a trio of mail-carriers who had the SONS worried throughout. Van Loo is the transfer from Oregon and Lee is the Eugene high whiz of last season That 20-0 score gives a false impression, to be sure. New Monmouth Coach Bill McArthur's crew would have deserved a win in what would have been a major upset. McArthur has done a fine job with the Polk county team, and since its players are nearly all underclassmen you can look for some rugged OCE elevens in the future. Incidentally, the Monmouth line is just about as big as they come in college. The startpounds

Tag Team Rematch Tops Armory Mat Fare

The tag team donnybrook that wowed the gallery last week to the extent that part of it joined in the young riot afterward, returns to the Ferry Street Garden tonight to cap Matchmaker Elton Owen's weekly mat program. The rip-snorter, and it will be all of that since the entire purse this time goes to the winning duct, features Jack (Tiger) Kiser and Jackie Nickols on the cleanie side and Tougher-than-ever Tony Ross and Joe Dorsettl as the nasties. What they slugged and slammed off last week amounted to one of Owen's top pitches at the garden in months. Tonight's retake could be even better inasmuch as the winning team does get all the do-re-mi and since the Kiser-Nickols clicque is justly irked after the way things turned out a week ago. The Ross-Dorsetti twosome col-

have been the win. When Owen did manage to clear the decks it was Ross on top of Kiser and Owen had nothing left to do but declare Ross and his disliked partner the winners. This brought on the irate customers and then the gendarmes.

Tonights semiwindup puts popular Dave Reynolds in his toughest tussle to date locally. He goes in against Mustachioed Whitey Whittler, one of the game's biggest and top nasties. Theirs will be a 2-of-3 faller lim-ited to 30 minutes. In the 8:30 o'clock opener, a one-faller or 20 minutes, it will be Al Getz against newcomer Bob Cummings. The latter is still another in the long line of new faces being brought into the circuit and he hails from Pittsburgh, Pa. He is said to be a grappler on the

Marino Licked Duck Hunters Go Today

PORTLAND, Oct. 20 -(AP)- Oregon geese and duck hunters can take to the field tomorrow, but the turnout is expected to be smaller than last year's.

The forecast of rain plus the noon opening is expected to cut the number. The opening is at noon instead of dawn for the first time as a conservation measure.

The season will last through Nov. 3 with another period scheduled Dec. 23-Jan. 5.

When hunters go into the Klamath Falls area for ducks and geese, they will find a greater number of the water fowl than was the case last year, reports Howard J. Sergeant, manager of the Tulelake wildlife refuge. The warm and sunny weather of the past week has kept the birds feeding in harvested grain fields where they have put on poundage.

Nimrods will find plenty of mallards and canvasbacks and an increase of Canada and white-fronted geese.

A rise in the water levels on Tulelake is also expected to improve hunting conditions.

Kolln, an accomplished markswoman, holds the record for quick hunting results in this area. Mr. and Mrs. Kolin drove up the Aliqua near Camp 14 and 20 minutes after leaving their car, Mrs. Kolln had bagged her around $130,000 to see the slow, 250-pound buck and the two unexciting bout — biggest British gate for a fight between flyweights writers and others have been inwere back with their same almost before the hunt got under--as well as Marino and Manager way.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 20-(P) -The Portland fire marshall recommended today that the city council condemn the Portland Beaver baseball park.
