5 Books Slated by University Men; Subjects Widely Variant

New published works of five Willamette university professors are soon to appear or recently have appeared, covering in all the wide range of literature, law, sociology, psychology and philosophy. The writing professors are Dr. Egbert S. Oliver, Dr. Seward F. Reese, Dr. Arthur Burton, Dr. John Rademaker and Prof. Raoul C. Bertrand.

The published output of these men won the commendation of President G. Herbert Smith, who said, "Although teaching is the first importance in a university, the production of these works is significant of the quality of these faculty members and of Willamette."

Professor Bertrand, head of the philosophy department, recently finished his book, "Ethics and Politics of Bertrand Russell," which took three years to complete. "Russell of Cambridge is one of the greatest thinkers of his time," said Professor Bertrand. "In the field of logic, he is the greatest man since Aristotle, and has made brilliant contributions to modern mathematics.

"This is the first single-author attempt, to my knowledge, to comment critically on Russell's ethics and politics," said Bertrand, who is planning a leave of absence from Willamette to receive his doctor's degree from the Sorbonne in Paris. He also expects to teach there.

500 Cases Included

Dr. Reese, dean of the law school, compiled 500 cases in his book, "Cases on Code Pleading." Frank Pozi and Muri Long, law students at Willamette, assisted Dean Reese in the compilation, which was published last summer. "This book is primarily for law students who plan to practice in Oregon," said the dean.

Reese, a native of West Virginia, was a colonel in the air forces during the war. He studied at West Virginia Wesleyan and University of Michigan and received doctor's degrees from Duke University and University of Indiana.

Dr. Oliver, professor of English, or the scholars," said Rademaker, "they know everything anyway."

Dr. Rademaker spent a summer vacation looking over 12,000 pictures in selecting the ones for his book. The pictures are taken from U. S. signal corps and engineer files. Rademaker studied at the College of Puget Sound and received his master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Washington.

'Future' Rail Unit Expected

The "Train of Tomorrow," an experimental rail unit produced by General Motors corporation and embodying many mechanical innovations, will pass through Salem December 2 on its current western states exhibition tour.

Announcement from General Motors was made Saturday that the train will go through this city about 2:20 p.m. that day en route to Portland, where it will be opened to public inspection at Union station December 4, 5 and 6 from 2 to 9 p.m. each day.

Features of the new type train include dome-like observation roofs above ordinary rail car level, radiophones and intercar phones, light colored interior decoration and others.

Swindle Sheet—What's Another Million Dollars

SEATTLE, Nov. 21—(AP)—When Carl W. Griffin sat down to figure his expense account for 12 days in Shanghai on a business trip, he reckoned it this way:

Hotel room, $3,622,500, with an electric fan $16,000 a day extra; $452,600 for telephone; $652,000 for a few meals at hotel—total hotel bill, $6,353,400.

Those are Chinese currency quotations, of course, but they provided expense account complications for Griffin, who returned from an assignment as Northwest Airlines flight superintendent in the orient. One of the complicating factors is the refusal of China's wildly inflated currency to stand still. It dropped from $37,000 to the American dollar to $104,000 to $1 during his stay.

On his total expense account of $9,453,000, he figured he had spent about $150 in U. S. money. Net result: He billed the airline for $3 due on his account.

West-Salem Weekly Ceases Publication

WEST SALEM, Nov. 21—The Challenger, a weekly newspaper published here for the past several months, ceased publication this week, it was announced in the final issue Friday by Publisher F. Gilbert Lieser.

Lieser said the entire physical plant of his firm has been moved to Eugene, where he is now publishing "The Eugene Spokesman."

Lieser also announced sale of circulation lists to the Capital Press, a Salem weekly, which will be circulated to Challenger subscribers.

2 Salesmen Join Local Paint Firm

Addition of two new men in Salem to the sales force of recently established Norris & Walker Chemical Co. was announced Saturday by officials of the local paint manufacturing company at 1780 N. Front st.

They are Harold MacInnes, formerly production manager for Oacy Cement Paint Co. of Vancouver, B. C., and Hazen M. Smith, formerly with an auto body and paint supply firm of Lynn, Mass. MacInnes will supervise sales of the local firm's new line of dry powder, waterproof cement paints. Both new men are World War II veterans.

Legion Women Ready Christmas Seals for Mail

Envelopes, 20,000 of them, will be in the mail Monday carrying Christmas seals to Marion county residents, due to the work of these women, members of Capital unit, American Legion auxiliary, and others who have staffed the seals into the envelopes for the Marion county public health association. Shown above at work in the association's office in Masonic temple are (left to right) Mrs. Frank Jirak, Mrs. W. L. Habernicht, Mrs. Barbara Stumbo, Mrs. George Edwards, Mrs. L. F. Neuperman and Mrs. Hans Hofstetter. In the background are Mrs. James Bunnell (standing), executive secretary of the association, and Mrs. Austin Wilson, office secretary.

Christmas Seal Sale to Start Here Monday

Salem's part in the fight against tuberculosis and in the other health education projects backed by Marion county public health associations, as representative of the state and national tuberculosis organizations, will reach its annual peak Monday with the beginning of the 41st yearly Christmas seal sale.

Keynote for the local drive which raises funds which are the sole support of the county unit will be sounded Monday noon at the Salem Chamber of Commerce luncheon, featuring an address by Dr. C. V. Langton, dean of the physical education school at Oregon State college.

The scheduled Monday address by the Rev. Francis P. Leipzig of Eugene was substituted for Saturday when he sent word that an emergency would prevent his coming to Salem Monday.

Related to the seal sale here is the sale in schools of red bangle pins. Seals are being mailed to 20,000 Marion county homes as an appeal for funds.

Seal sales are supervised this year by Mrs. Barbara Stumbo as county chairman and Mrs. R. J. Elstrom as Salem chairman. E. J. Scellars is bond sale chairman.

The association's health program in this area has made use in the past year of mobile X-ray units, films, pamphlets and posters, all disseminated with the aid of volunteer groups under the direction of the county association's staff. Chest X-rays were given, free of charge to 22,083 persons in Marion county during the year, reports Mrs. James Bunnell, association executive here.

Approximately 200 volunteer workers help with the preparing of the Christmas seals for mailing. Salem firemen fold the seals, typing classes from Salem High school typed the blue envelopes, American Legion auxiliary women stuffed envelopes. Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts took the responsibility of distributing posters throughout the city.

Long Range Plan For Boy Scouts On Slate Monday

Cascade area Boy Scout council's long range planning committee will hold its first official dinner meeting Monday at 6:30 p. m. in Salem hotel.

Meeting under the direction of Chairman Albert Epperly, Albany, committee members from over the council will discuss a plan to outline future progress of the council.

The following Veterans Organizations of the City of Salem extend their appreciation to those business concerns who remained closed on Armistice Day, a day set aside as a legal public holiday by the 75th Congress to be dedicated to the cause of world peace.

These firms, by closing, realize that theirs is a small contribution as compared to the sacrifice of those men who served for the cause of world peace.
