Fruity Dish

Avocados Pinch Hit for Meat in Main Dish Suggestion from Growers

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

Now that Thanksgiving's over, and Christmas is not yet here, let's go in for some recipes far removed from turkey and its fixings. Avocados, and particularly the Californian product, the Calavo, has again appeared in the market in abundance, and comparatively low in price.

(With the cost of a single home grown pear at around 9 cents, the avocado seems reasonable.)

The Calavo people are suggesting the use of this fruit, with its high fat content, as excellent for meatless main dishes, and go so far as to offer the following recipe to prove it.

CALAVO SPANISH ENTREE

- 1 medium-sized Calavo
- 1 1/2 cups canned cream style corn
- 1/2 cup tomato sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Toast

Cut avocado into halves lengthwise and remove seed and skin. Cut fruit into cubes. Combine corn, tomato sauce, chili powder, flour and salt, and stir to blend. Bring to a boil and cook and stir until thick. Remove from heat and add Calavo. Serve over toast.

Avocados remain at their best in salads and go especially well with tart fruits such as grapefruit. They're long since become a luxury and are a regular item on most menus now.

"Holly" Says

Talking for Santa Claus I think you should come in and help him out a little by selecting that diamond ring or wrist watch. Right now we have a good selection of both and you can make your selection at ease and without being rushed. We will put your purchase in the safe and keep it until day before Christmas for you safe from those who just can't wait. (Wasn't that a nice way of saying it?) We will deem it a pleasure to show you these new watches and diamond rings and believe me you will not be urged to buy. Take a look and if you like them okay and if you do not that's okay too, we won't tell you "Better snap it up; we may not have any more" because we will, or that "Your wife may leave you if you don't buy her one." No such luck and we wouldn't disillusion you even at the cost of a sale. Select anything in the store; a deposit will hold it until you call for it just before Christmas.
