Vikings Play Pioneer Quintet Here Tonight

Holiday vacation ends decidedly for Salem high's courtsters tonight when they open a twogame home stand with the Oregon City Pioneers and the Commerce Stenogs of Portland. Both eight o'clockers will be preceded by 6:30 prelims featuring Loren Mort's Viking Jayvees. Tonight's opener with

Both Oregon, OSC Will Be Toughies

If there were any doubt as to Oregon's northern division basketball potentialities this winter, same should be erased after those two 'chance of victory hinging on the decisions over "Phog" Allen's Kansas team. Consider also that John Warren's hopes have notched nine wins in 11 games thus far. Their only losses were the five-pointer to Williamette on a red hot Bearcat night and a two-pointer to Long Island U in New York. All of which arrives at the fact that Ducks will be just as tough as any in conference play. They get to prove it early, for their first two league engagements are with the pre-season favored Washingtons at Eugene next weekend.

On th other hand the Oregon Staters can't be underrated either. Despite their recent five-game losing streak the Beavers hold wins the Engineers soar into the lead over the Oakland Bittner sharpies and California Bears, both de luxe models. Which proves that Slats Gill's team can rise to the touchdowns. heights and be just as potent as the rest. All in all, what with Washington and Washington State known to be strong and both Oregon Lujack Named and Oregon State acting anything but puny, it looks like another great division race this winter. Not forgetting, too, that new Coach Chuck Finley might spring a surprise or two at Idaho.

13 Tourney Grads Now in Fast Company

This might be of interest to those who remember the state basketball tournament days in Salem and, while watching the more talented preps go at it wondered just where they would wind up and how they would fare in college. Crandall Blossomed Best of All

Tourney-goers of the recent past no doubt remember them well. Many were "All State" or next to it. Perhaps the most surprising of the 13 is Crandall, six-foot, two-inch 180-pound heart, lungs and brain of the current Beavers. When at Astoria as a running mate for Stan Williamson, Crandall was so skinny you had to look twice to see him. They used to tape him to his suit, for he wasn't proportioned enough to hold it on otherwise. He made quite a sight with his disgusting awkwardness in that baggy gear and earned well the nickname of "Ichabod Crane." But Crandall had the actions and the blessing of the reputable Palmberg. A hitch in the army, which gave him a chance to grow up. did the rest. And we'd venture to say any cage coach on the coast would love to hold strings on another "Ichabod Crane" should one happen to pop up in this year's prep tournament at Eugene.

Result Biggest Rout in Classic's History

By Russ Newland SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1 -(AP)-All America Johnny Lujack closed out his college football career in brilliant fashion today when he pitched and engineered the East to a 40 to 9 victory over the West in the 23rd charity game between gridiron stars gathered from all parts of the country. A crowd of 60,000 fans, who sat through a steady drizzle, saw the great Notre Dame quarterback drive his teammates to four touchdowns and score one himself as the East defeated the bulky westerners in the biggest rout in the history of the classic.

The West scored first, a touchdown within the first six minutes after the kickoff, but the show was an all-eastern affair thereafter. It was Lujack, the black-haired sixfooter, hitting his receivers with accurate passes, out-tricking the opposition on the ground and doing the punting.

Otherwise, Lujack, the master eraftsman, was in full command. The west scored on plunges and a final 11-yard pass from Quarterback Virgil Eikenberg of Rice to Right End Gail Bruce of Washington, but then the East started roll-

Lujack took the kickoff for a 22yard return to the East 35. He threw passes for 13 and 7 yards to Lou Mihajlovich, Indiana, and then whipped the ball to Left End Bill Swiacki, Columbia, over the goal line.

Eastern superiority was demonstrated for the next three periods. Shortly before the first half ended, the East moved the ball from its own 23 to a touchdown, Lujack throwing to Bobby Sullivan, left half from Holy Cross, in the end

In the third, Earl Maves, right half from Wisconsin, cracked right tackle for the last yard and the third East touchdown.

The West scored its other two points on a safety when Fullback Bill Luongo, Pennsylvania, was trapped behind his own line.

The eastern stars ran through the weary westerners in the final period for three touchdowns. One climaxed a 54-yard drive and saw Lujack fool the opposition by dashing eight yards around right end to score standing up.
