Oren Stratton Rites Thursday

Funeral services for Oren Stratton, 83, resident of Salem for about 25 years who died at a local hospital Monday night, will be Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the W. T. Rigdon chapel. Burial will be at Belvidere Memorial park, and the Rev. Brooks Moore will officiate. Mr. Stratton was born in Madison, Wisc., and came to Oregon in 1903. He farmed near Brownsville for about 20 years before retiring and moving to Salem. His health had been failing for the past few months, and he entered the hospital January 1. He was a member of the Carthage, S.D., Masonic lodge and of the Salem First Methodist church.

Survivors are the widow, Lulu Stratton of Salem route 2; son, Byron E. Stratton of Salem; brother, Byron Stratton of Upland, Calif.; sister, Mrs. Henry Seeman of Deer River, Minn.; grandchildren, Allen M. Stratton and Mrs. Jeanette Boardrow of Salem; nephew, Clarence Stratton of Salem.

Circuit Court Jury List Filed

The Marion county circuit court jury list for 1948, consisting of 419 names, was filed with Marion County Clerk Harlan Judd Tuesday morning by the county clerk. Two or more names of residents from each of the county's 92 precincts are on the list of those believed by the court to be qualified for jury duty. The list will be drawn on from time to time by Clerk Judd as jurors are needed for circuit court.

Signs to Bar 'Hod Rods' from Aurora Strip

Marion County District Attorney Miller B. Hayden advised the state police here Tuesday to post "no trespassing signs" around the Aurora emergency air strip, which has reportedly been used for amateur auto racing contests.

The posting should be done immediately, Hayden said, to avoid possible injury to the "hot rod" drivers and to planes attempting to land on the strip. Violators of the signs may be prosecuted by law, Hayden declared.

At the request of the state police, who reported that planes have been unable to land on the strip at times because of the racing going on, Hayden investigated the strip Monday which is adjacent to the Aurora-Wilsonville highway and is the property of the state highway commission.

In another requested opinion, Hayden informed the state police that they have a right to enter a school house during school hours to make an arrest without a warrant on a felony charge. The district attorney advised, however, that it is "better police practice" to wait until classroom sessions have adjourned, before making the arrest.

Mrs. Robins, 82, Succumbs

Mrs. Anna J. Robins, who was born near Hazel Green nearly 83 years ago and had resided in the Pringle community for more than 60 years, died Tuesday at a local hospital following several years of failing health. She suffered a stroke last week.

Mrs. Robins was a member of the Tanner family who came from Missouri. She was married to William Robert Robins, who died in 1923. She had resided in the same house, south of Pringle school, from the time of her marriage until coming to Salem a few years ago.

Survivors are three sons, Percy of Turner, W. L. of Salem and Charles of Coos Bay. Funeral arrangements are in charge of the W. T. Rigdon company.

Agriculture Director Contends Slaughter of Day-Old Calves for Human Food Overemphasized

By Lillie L. Madsen
Feature Editor, The Statesman

The situation of slaughtering one-day-old calves for human consumption is being overemphasized, E. L. Peterson, state director of agriculture, declared Tuesday.

Peterson said that while it is unlawful to slaughter for food, calves that are under four weeks old, for the past year and a half it has been apparent that some of this was being done. There is evidence that some immature veals go into sausage made by unscrupulous processors, he added.

"However," Peterson said, "there has not been as much of it done as people are lead to suppose. We have contacted meat dealers and slaughterers all over the state and we have warned them. In addition, we have instructed field operatives to police the situation so far as possible. While we have not been too successful, we have made some progress. Proof is difficult. Like in any black market it is difficult to get conviction because it is difficult to get proof beyond doubt."

There was a time, with calves priced at $1 each, when meat of this nature was sold for food for mink and fox, Peterson said. Now, on account of the high cost of food, these calves are selling for as high as $10 a head with the skins turned into furs.

The present meat inspection law, Peterson explained, provides only for sanitary inspection of slaughterhouses. The only remedy to prevent the slaughter and selling of immature veal for human consumption, and to enforce the existing law forbidding this, is antemortem and postmortem inspection under state regulation, he believed.

In this connection an interim committee, appointed by the late Governor Earl S. Snell, has been studying the present inspection laws, and the sources and supplies of meat for human consumption. The committee will make its report prior to the next legislative session in hopes of having passed more adequate laws.

Veterinarians meeting here last week, said that the present situation of the very young calves appearing on human consumption markets should help obtain support of the public for moves to strengthen and improve the Oregon laws.

When questioned, Dr. Charles F. Haynes, state veterinarian who came here last April from Montana, said that in so far as a healthy calf is concerned the problem of eating too young veal is one of economics and nutrition, rather than harm from consumption. But there again, he added, was the point, "We have no proof that these immature calves are

Brand to Talk To Local Vets

A talk to Salem veterans is scheduled by Justice James Brand of the Oregon supreme court who returned recently from a year's service with a war crimes tribunal in Germany.

The judge will address Capital post 9, American Legion, during its regular meeting Monday night, February 2. The post plans to invite all other veteran groups to join in the meeting and to open the session to any other veterans of Salem and vicinity.

Capital post has put on display

Dr. Haynes, at the veterinary association meeting, was appointed chairman of an association committee to confer further with the department of agriculture on meat inspection rules and regulations.

WU English Prof to Attend Church Meet

Dr. Egbert S. Oliver, professor of English at Willamette university, will leave the campus Friday to attend the annual Missions council meeting of the Congregational churches in Grand Rapids, Mich., January 26 through 29.

Oliver is one of 36 directors-at-large on the board of home missions in the United States and is presently serving his second term as a director. While at the meeting he will spend most of his time on committees of religious education and publications.

However, Oliver believes that the most important part of the meetings will be devoted to organizing a nationwide drive to combat discriminatory practices in race relations.

After the meetings he will stop at the University of Wisconsin on his return trip to take part in discussions on American literature.

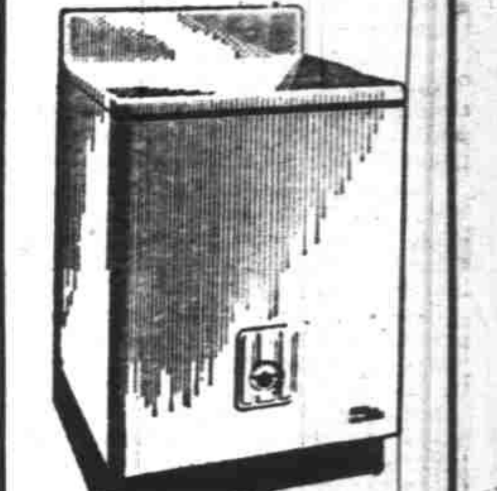

He will also stop off at the University of Washington en route home and will return to the campus on February 3 in time for final examinations.

West Point Deadline Extended for Guardsmen

Deadline for eligible national guardsmen to be nominated for entrance to the United States military academy at West Point for the class of 1952 has been extended to Feb. 1, 1948, Adjutant General Thomas E. Rilea announced Tuesday.

Rilea said applicants must meet the physical and academic requirements prescribed in the military academy catalogue. They also must have one year's service in a federally recognized unit of the national guard by July 1, 1948.
