TRAVEL TIME . . . soon for Dean Olive M. Dahl, who begins her seven months trip in February. Miss Dahl, dean of women at Willamette university, has taken a leave of absence for the coming semester. The first lap of her trip will take her to Fort Worth, Texas, to visit her sister and family, the R. D. Chisholms. Then she heads for Montreal, where she will sail the first of May for England, Norway and Sweden. . . . In the Scandinavian countries she will visit relatives and in Sweden she hopes to take some special work at the University of Upsala. Plans are now that Miss Dahl will be back in New York the first of September.

Also headed for Norway in early April will be Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Anderson, who will sail from New York. They plan to visit friends and relatives in and around Oslo for three months and accompanying them home will be Mr. Arneson's nephew, who will live with them.

Bound for Chicago . . . on Thursday will be Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Gordon. They will be accompanied as far as Central City, Nebraska by their two children, who will be with her mother, Mrs. W. G. Sampson, until their return trip. In Chicago Dr. Gordon will attend a meeting of state officers of the Osteopathic association. After a week in the "windy city" the Gordons will visit in Hebron, Nebraska, with his family and then go to Central City for a short stay.

WEDDING ECHOES . . . Last Sunday when our own staff photographer, Don Dill, bestowed his name on Elaine Winkle. . . . A perfect day. . . . cool and crisp with the mid-afternoon sun shining through the stained glass windows of St. Mark's Lutheran church. . . . A spring atmosphere in the bouquets at the altar and the peach and chrysanthemum fests of the attendants. . . . The radiant bride in a gleaming white satin gown and carrying a pretty crescent shaped bouquet of gardenias and Talsman roses. . . . later caught by one of the bridesmaids, Ramona Evans. . . . "for something old" Elaine carried an heirloom lace handkerchief, which had been given to her by the groom's mother. . . . Smiles for little Kathryn Kolb, flower girl, in a dainty white floor length frock, and John Wesley, ring bearer, trotting down the aisle ahead of the bride. . . . and the best man and ushers (all members of our staff) so good-looking in their dark suits and carnation boutonnières.

The bride's table . . . An off-center arrangement of red roses and white tapers and roses encircling the tiered cake. . . . Miss Sharon Coover, passing the guest book, and smart in a violet suit with grey accessories and gardenia corsage. . . . Among the guests many coming from out-of-town. Mrs. Harold Larson in all black topped with a Persian lamb coat. . . . Three coeds, Beverly Kenney, Betty Lou Edwards and Bernice Isham. . . . Dr. and Mrs. Robert Burdette. . . . The Lawrence Ostermans and their young daughter. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burke. . . . and seemingly a photographer in every corner. . . . all Don's friends. Au revoir. . . . the bridesmaids didn't seem to mind the cold weather. . . . as when time came for Don and Elaine to leave they dashed outside the church and waited for the bride to throw her bouquet from atop the steps.

TEA TIME . . . on Friday when Mrs. George Rossman and Mrs. David Eason entertained with a large au revoir party for Mrs. Custer Ross, who sails in mid-February for the Orient. . . . The three receiving at one end of the drawing room before a handsome mirror in the Rossman home. . . . the honor guest wearing a becoming gown of vermillion red with sequin trim and corsage of iris.

From out-of-town . . . came many to say farewell to the traveler. . . . Mrs. L. G. Lewelling of Albany, who is accompanying Mrs. Ross on the trip, wore a colorful spring print. . . . Mrs. Claude Johns with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Courtney Jones, also of Albany, who wore mink furs and hat with her suit. . . . Over from Silverton. . . . Mrs. Clarence Keene and Mrs. Henry B. Pritzlaff. . . . Mrs. R. S. Kreson of Dallas, stunning in the ever popular black. . . . Also choosing black was Mrs. Clyde Mount of Oregon City. . . . Down from Portland. . . . Mrs. George Otten and her attractive young daughter-in-law, both in attractive grey ensembles. . . . Mrs. Robert Goodfellow of Portland, here for the day, and coming in with her husband's mother, Mrs. Joseph Goodfellow, and Mrs. Robert Drager. . . . Welcome back. . . . for Mrs. John Vincens (Glen Barnes) here for a short visit from New York and wearing a chic red coat with hood lined in white over her brown suit. . . . Glen is enjoying the east and has a large farm house situated on the Hudson. . . . Nice to see Mrs. Dan Johnston again, who says she is back in Salem after dividing her time in Portland.

Springtime . . . noted many new spring chapeaux and print dresses. . . . A pink print silk suit and pink straw with matching veiling chosen by Mrs. L. O. Arens. . . . A print suit with full ballerina skirt for Mrs. Estill Brunk. . . . Mrs. Harris Lietz selected a black open crown hat with pink and blue ribbon halo brim in front. . . . A topaz hat embellished with cinnamon ribbon for Mrs. A. A. Rogers. . . . Mrs. Charles Collier wearing a good-looking brown satin suit with a diamond brown hat. . . . An orchid corsage pinned to Mrs. F. W. Lehmer's black ensemble. . . . and Mrs. J. N. Bishop chic in a lilac suit and white hat with perky feather.
