Small Sweets Recipes for Cookies Come From Old File, Recalled as Good Formulas

By Maxine Baren
Statesman Women's Editor

There are many ardent collectors, especially of recipes, among housewives, but none are ardent or well supplied with recipe books, cards and odd notations, than the woman who writes on cooking for a living.

She seldom throws away a recipe until she tries it, and she seldom has time to try out half what she gets. Always expecting to need new ideas, and therefore finding it against her nature to let loose of any potential story material we keep everything we get.

"Cleaning" up my files today (but only rearranging I assure you) I begin with the large three-drawer metal case of manufacturers' booklets, not even glancing toward the small three-drawer metal case of 3x5 favorite recipes, the worn out cardboard box of 5x8 cards of miscellaneous recipes, the volumes of tried recipes on mimeographed sheets which we bound a long time ago, the little black notebooks we always refer to first or the box of miscellaneous clippings and handwritten notations which will never in all our life be able to completely go over, because they accumulate too fast.

BRAHMAS ENTER MINNESOTA

Brahmas will get into the cattle picture in America. Now a Minnesota beef cattle raiser reports he has a new profitable beef breed, the outgrowth of crossing pure-bred Aberdeen Angus heifers with Brahma bulls. The cross fattens more rapidly and finishes off on dry feed better, says E. A. Rosander, the breeder. The cross gained more than 200 pounds more in a 13-month period than did the purebred Angus.
