

Central Howell Local Backer Of Corn Show

CENTRAL HOWELL — The Marion county corn show will be sponsored this year by the Central Howell local, Farmers Educational and Cooperative union, it was decided by the local at its Monday night meeting.

Corn show plans will be made by the agriculture committee which includes Ted Hobart, Clarence Johnson, Dan Steffen, W. T. Hatteberg and Harry Riches.

That committee also was charged with study of other projects the local may sponsor, including home and roadside beautification and weed control. Harry Riches is to plan a weed spray demonstration for the group.

Frank Way, Silas Torvand and Lloyd Beutler were appointed to follow through on the suggestion the local purchase a moving picture projector. Riches and Hobart showed two reels of moving pictures, one dealing with permanent pastures and their effect on soil erosion. Mrs. Elton Watts and Mrs. Clarence Johnson served lunch following the meeting.

Marion Forks — A snowstorm hit Marion Forks and the summit with the North Santiam just passable, snow plows making little headway in clearing it. Hoodoo Bowl was in a real blizzard but hundreds of skiers remained until late afternoon.

Robert Goss, Pioneer Bean Grower, Dies

WEST STAYTON — Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Weddie chapel in Stayton for Robert L. Goss, prominent bean grower of West Stayton, who died of a heart attack at his home shortly after noon on Wednesday. He had been in ill health for some time.

Interment will be at Belcrest Memorial Park, Salem. Goss is survived by his widow, Sallye Chastain Goss; a daughter, Mrs. Shelby Whiteman of Pendleton; a son, Larry Goss of West Stayton; two grandsons, Darr Lee Goss and James Goss, also of West Stayton; three sisters, Mrs. Lenore Lightner of Reno, Nev., Mrs. Dora Reed of Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Chastain of Sacramento, Calif.

Goss was born Dec. 10, 1875, in Nashville, Tenn. He came to Oregon with his parents in 1898 and settled in Klamath county, where he was married to Sallye Chastain in 1901. After several years they moved with their children to Eugene, and in 1927 came to West Stayton.

That same year Goss planted five acres of Kentucky Wonder snap beans for California Packing Corporation that year, then gradually increased his acreage and improved on methods until he reached a maximum of 40 acres. He was considered a pioneer in the bean growing industry in the valley.

In 1934 Goss joined the Blue Lake Producers co-operative and served on its board of directors from 1942 to 1946, retiring because of ill health suffered after being in an automobile accident in which his older son, Arthur, was killed.

Centennarian Don't Know How He'll Vote but Still Be G.O.P.

WATERLOO, Ore. — The celebrated 106-year-old Jimmy Smith, a civil war veteran who cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, said at his home here on the great emancipator's birthday that he hadn't decided how he would cast his vote in this year's election.

"Maybe it will be Stassen, Taft or Dewey, but the one I vote for will have to prove first that he is a capable man to handle the job," he said.

"At any rate, I am a died-in-the-wool republican, that's for sure," he continued before mentioning that "both Truman and Roosevelt were great men who took over in difficult times and the country came through just fine."

On Lincoln, the Waterloo sage spoke at length. "He was known as the log cabin man. It was he who believed in freedom and when I got out of the union army at The Dalles, I was given a pension he had ordered for us boys. We didn't have any of these political parties then. We were all strong Americans and republicans."

Jimmy Smith still draws this pension which arrives monthly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Ashmon by the Waterloo blacksmith shop where he lives with his younger brother, Benjamin Smith, a youth of 92.

"My formula for long living is simple," the 106-year-old veteran relates. "I just keep moving from climate to climate until I find the one that agrees with me. When I was in New Orleans and felt bad, I moved to Canada, then tried out the California weather next. Down
