Acclaim Grows For Willamette Speech Team

By Jim Oakes Statesman Campus Correspondent

Willamette university's victorious forensic team, fresh from sweeping the College of Puget Sound speech tournament at Tacoma, appear well on their way towards national recognition in collegiate forensic competition.

In winning the tourney sweepstakes last week end by taking five of 10 events, the Willamette squad has now assured itself of entering the Tau Kappa Alpha forensic honorary speech tourney at Indiana university April 22-24. Dr. Herbert Rahe, forensic activities head, said yesterday.

Other honors are in the offing if Willamette is able to place at least third in the state tournament at Linfield college February 26-28. Rahe also related, explaining that Willamette might be selected as one of three northwest representatives to compete at the West Point, N.Y., nationwide, 32-team forensic tournament April 30 to May 2.

The recent win at Tacoma was the third large tourney Willamette has competed in this school year. Local speakers have won in the three tournaments a total of 12 first places. The first five were taken at Walla Walla in early December when Willamette won the sweepstakes. The next two came at Salt Lake at the end of December when Chuck Mills, Salem and Bob Sayre, Salem, took honors, and were rated best from the northwest.

Mills, an upper classman, was ruled out of the Puget Sound tourney because it was for lower classmen only.

Christian Science Lecturer from Minnesota Talks

Sim Andrew Kolliner, C.S.B., of St. Paul, Minn., a member of the Christian Science board of lecturership, declared in a public address last night that racial and religious prejudices as well as hatred and political strife, have no place in the consciousness of divine love. He spoke at the senior high school.

The lecturer explained this approach to problems of racial or other prejudices by presenting in several ways the basic teaching of Christian Science concerning reality and unreality. That which is like God, he said, is real. Whatever appears to be, yet is unlike God, must be illusory, since God is the only creator, and is infinitely good, he declared.

In further development of his lecture theme, "Christian Science: Its Practical Application to Everyday Life," Mr. Kolliner gave actual incidents of physical healing and the solution of business difficulties and social problems.

The lecture was sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Salem.

Father's Fight To Regain Son Ends in Victory

A father's fight to regain custody of a son whom he gave up at birth 13 years ago ended in victory Tuesday when the state supreme court unanimously awarded the boy to him.

The court's decision upheld Circuit Judge Orval J. Millard of Jackson county. The 13-year-old boy, Charles I. Ashbaugh, has been raised by his aunt, Atha W. McKinney, since the boy's mother died at birth. The father, Melvin Ashbaugh, gave the baby to the aunt, who was the sister of the dead mother. The father has adopted him.

The father has since remarried and lives in Texas, having spent five years in the army in the recent war. The court, in a decision by Justice Percy R. Kelly, praised the aunt highly for her work in caring for the boy, but said he should join his father, now that the father is able to take care of him.

Bill to Grant Vet Trainees Added Funds

Subsistence allowances for veterans taking on-the-job training in farming and trade apprenticeships in Oregon may be increased by 50 per cent if congress passes a measure now in conference committee.

This announcement was made Tuesday by O. J. Paulson, head of the state vocational education division, with offices in Salem. Single trainees now receive $75 a month and married enrollees $90 a month.

At the same time Paulson said that the current enrollment at the Oregon vocational school at Klamath Falls has reached 453 as compared with 85 when the school opened last July. He predicted that the enrollment would reach more than 500 by the end of 1948.

A shortage of living facilities at the school is the only factor now curtailing an increased enrollment, Paulson said. A shortage of accommodations for married couples now prevails, Paulson stated, but said that there is no shortage of facilities for single students.
