Every coach we've talked with since Coquille's Ray Hunsaker popper his prep football playoff remodeling plan is definitely for it. Fifteen schools outside of the Portland setup average daily attendance of over 700 students. All the rest in the class A index have below 00. Hunsaker would therefore have the 15 divvied into three groups, five to a group, and have them play off with the Portlands for the prep grid title. Klamath Falls, Medford, Grants Pass, Roseburg and Bend would he in one group; Eugene, Springfield, Salem, Albany and Corvallis would be in another - - a natural for Salem inasmuch as the Vikings play all those teams anyway - - and Gresham, Milwaukie, Hillsboro, Oregon City and

EUGENE, March 8 -(Special) The Oregon State college and University of Washington basketball teams, both of them hot contenders for the northern division championship since the beginning of the season and now in a dead-lock for first place following the finish of scheduled play, Tues-day night clash on neutral McArthur court here for the 1948 title. The game starts at eight o'clock and will send its winner south to Berkeley, Calif., to play the Cali-fornia Bears, champions of the southern division.

Coach Art McLarney's Huskies, pre-season pick as shoo-in for the northern division crown, will be heavily favored in the one-game playoff. The odds on the Huskies went decidedly up when it was announced from Corvallis Sunday that Cliff Crandall, backbone of the Beaver team who was injured in Saturday night's finale with Oregon, will not be able to play Tuesday. Crandall suffered a torn ligament in his right knee in the Webfoot game. Loss of the Beaver captain is a terrific blow to OSC, for he was the team's foremost scorer and all-around leading during the season. Dan Torrey, a sophemore from Port-land, will be in Crandall's spot. During the regular season Washington and Oregon State divided their four games equally. OSC won the first two handily in fast games at Corvallis. Then the Huskies, using a tight zone and refusing to run with the Beavers, evened the count in two slowlyplayed games at Seattle. Whether McLarney will again call on the intricate zone to stop the Beavers has not been made known.

Starters along with Torrey for Oregon State are apt to be Alex Peterson at forward, Len Rinearson at center and Dick Ballantyne and Norm Carey at guards. For the Huskies, northern division record setter Jack Nichols will be at center, fresh from establishing a new scoring mark of 265 points in 16 games. Sammy White and Bill Vandenburgh will be at forwards, and Bill Taylor and Bobby Jorgenson at guards.
