How Would Hec Have Fared?

Many are wondering just how far this year's Washington Husky cage club would have gone under old Hec Edmundson and no few believe that if Hee had been holding the reins, the lads from Seattle would have nabbed the ND grown during the regular campaign, Edmundson got something akin to a raw deal at the Husky school after his many years of yeoman service, according to reports. Hec, it's told, asked for another year with the club he'd built up-one more year, win, lose or draw. And, of course the answer was "No." . . . Jack Nichols has shattered sooring marks right and left but he's had plenty of cooperation from Coach Art McClarney and the rest of the Husky pack. Lesnevich Rep Zooms

When Joe Louis announced he was retiring after the coming June bout with Joe Walcott was the Brown Beiter thinking of Gus Lesnevich? Gus is getting accolades from here and there as absolutely the best mittsman in the land, especially after his quick win over very capable Billy Fox last week. Louis himself opined that Lesnevich would give him a tougher time than Walcott and evidently the Louis of 1948 is going to make mighty sure he doesn't collide with the light heavy king, even though such a brawl would draw an easy million dollar gate ... The ballooning Lesnevich reputation makes Joe Kahut look bet-

Salem Victory Ends Playoffs

Salem's Vikings and Silverton's Silver Foxes, both willing to rep-Wednesday, go at it again tonight at the Vik Villa, at eight o'clock, in what could be the final game of the No. 11 playoffs. They are the finalists in the seven-team tourney, but the road to Eugene is much longer for Jerry Gastineau's Foxes than for Harold Hauk's top-seeded Salems.

A Viking victory tonight-and the Salems downed Silverton 51-31 last Saturday for the only Fox loss of the double-elimination tourney-will send them to the state meet. Should Silverton pop in with an upset, however, a final game will be played by the same teams here Wednesday night.

Bilverton has reached tonight's game via wins over Mt. Angel (twice) and Jefferson. Salem has rambled over Sacred Heart Academy. Woodburn and Silverton.
