

Rites Read At Church Tuesday

In a spring setting of white snapdragons and stock at the First Congregational church Tuesday night Miss Carmen Jeanne Campbell became Ensign Ronald Max Smith's bride. At 8 o'clock the Rev. Seth Huntington performed the nuptials before a large gathering of friends and relatives. Miss Edith Fairham was the soloist and Mrs. Lewis Mitchell the organist.

Before the bridal party walked down the candlelit aisle Mrs. John Johnson and Mrs. Walter J. Woodfield, in aqua and yellow taffeta bustle dresses, closed the aisle with white satin ribbons.

Of white tissue faille was the handsome bridal gown fashioned with a full train, long sleeves and fitted bodice with buttons extending from the high, round neckline to the waistline in front. The bodice was embellished with a V shaped bertha of starched, white Dutch lace. For "something borrowed" she wore Mrs. John Johnson's five tiered fingertip illusion veil, which cascaded from a Dutch lace cap adorned with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white hyacinths, tulips and baby orchids. The brunette bride was given in marriage by Van-Sellar Wieder.

Yellow and aqua were the colors selected by the bride for the feminine members of her wedding party. Mrs. Kenneth Buchanan, her sister's honor matron, wore a daffodil yellow faille gown fashioned off-shoulder with wide bertha of the material fitted bodices and full skirts. She carried a circular bouquet of bronze tulips. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Fred S. Anunsen, Jr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey, wore aqua dresses made identical to the honor attendant's and carried yellow tulips. The young matrons all wore matching Dutch caps of faille and mits.

For her daughter's nuptials Mrs. Wieder chose an aqua crepe dinner gown fashioned with draped skirt and cowl collar enhanced with silver sequins. Her silver sequin hat and trimmed in aqua. Pinned to the shoulder of her gown was a corsage of pink roses and white bouvardia. The benedict is the son of Mrs. G. J. Anderson of Fresno, who was unable to come north for the rites, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Smith of Salem. Mrs. Smith attended the ceremony in a dove grey gown and corsage of yellow roses.

The newlyweds greeted their guests at a reception in the fireplace room. Mrs. Grace Fox of Portland, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Marie Brady Keenan of Portland, presided at the urns. Mrs. Sanford Adler of Baker cut her niece's wedding cake. Assisting were Mrs. D. R. Ross and Mrs. Malcolm Price of Lebanon. Serving were Mesdames Charles Winkenwerder, Lawrence Feldschau, Landy Franz, George Schroeder and Miss Barbara Causey. Mrs. John H. Johnson was in charge of the gifts and Miss Jeanne Busick passed the guest book.

Ensign Smith and his bride are motoring south to California on their honeymoon and for traveling the bride donned a toast brown suit with ballerina skirt, short jacket designed with Puritan collar and gold tortoise shell buttons. Her accessories were matching and her profile straw hat was of emerald green adorned with feathers. She topped her ensemble with a short white coat and toast and green stripes. Her flowers were white baby orchids. After a several weeks sojourn in the south the newlyweds will be at home at the naval air station at Alameda, Calif., where he is stationed.

Prepared Flour Mixtures Help Out Hurried Housewife, Many in Stock

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Women's Editor

The woman who does her grocery buying by telephone is losing out on the changing world of food just as surely as she would lose touch with styles if she shopped for clothes by remote control.

Looking over the new foods which manufacturers are now preparing ready for cooking, we find a wide variety. Many are real economy in time, others are just somebody's bright idea, probably a man who never sets foot inside the kitchen. Of course there must be a call for all or they would soon do a disappearing act, for no manufacturer, no matter how fond of an idea, will survive long unless his product sells.

Today we were experimenting with two products, ready-mixed fudge and penuche which have made a comeback since the end of sugar rationing. These mixes, we find, are recommended not just for candy, frivolity that it is, but also for icing, sauce, brownies, cut cakes and pie filling.

Though we have not tried the full list of recipes fully we have looked them over and see them as quite a short cut for the busy woman who must prepare desserts after downtown working hours.

First of the many tailor-made flour mixtures was biscuit mix, which also remains among the most popular. One merely dips out some of the mixture, stirs in water to make the right consistency, and pops the biscuits into the oven. This mixture can be quickly doctored up perhaps adding sugar or eggs or spices to make cobbler, deep-dish pies, dumplings, sweet rolls, shortcake, and numberless other mixtures.

Next came prepared pie crust, which also requires only water to complete.

Then came gingerbread mix, which is a popular number with the grocer, several well-known companies vie with each other for sales of their gingerbread mix.

Looking over the grocers' stocks today we found mixes for yeast rolls, spice cake, yellow or sunshine cake, hot muffins, chocolate fudge cake and many others.

One company even puts out an apple pie complete with crust ready to mix up, and fruit ready to put in it.

Of course there are other types of ready prepared foods like complete macaroni dinners, but really, they will make a story in themselves.

So with all the new electrical gadgets, automatic washers, garbage disposal units, dishwashing machines, and ready prepared foods, the housewife will soon be at a loss to know how to fill up her time. Theoretically, that is.
