Rain Drowns Ball Opener; Senators, Tigers to Try Again Tonight at 8:15

Wilson, Brillheart Standing * Pat on Starting Combinations

Just as it has been feared for the past three weeks, the ever present rain took care of the grand opener for the Western International league baseball season last night, washing out the Salem-Tacoma inaugural at Waters field. Business Manager George Emigh and a crew of hopeful workmen had the premises in fairly decent shape at 5:30 o'clock by burning out the dampness with oil. But just when things looked as if a ball game were to be played, down came the unwelcome dew again and Emigh had no alternative but to postpone the takeoff until tonight at 8.15. The same ceremonies, teams, tickets, prizes, strategies and starting lineups are in effect for the second try. And according to the weatherman, who last night crystalballed "a much more cooperative day Saturday," the game probably will be possible tonight.

Righthander Bob Stevenson is still Manager Jack Wilson's mound choice for the Senators. And Jimmy Gleason, Tacoma righty, continues to be Skipper Jim Brillheart's nominee for the Tigers. The balance of the starting lineups, listed below, is intact. Two games are booked for Sunday night, starting at 7 o'clock. If Tacoma is willing and weather conditions warrant it, last night's game will be made up Monday night. Monday is an off-day for both clubs, but since the Tigers have only to go to Tacoma to open their season Tuesday night, it is possible they may stick around for the Monday makeup. The

Anxious to Start for Tiges

Glenn Stetter (above), the Willamette valley product who for the past two seasons has been one of the top WIL sluggers, expects to see action for the Tacoma Tigers tonight at Waters field. Stetter has been hampered by ailing legs this spring. The Tigers and Salem Senators were rained out of their opener last night, but hope to get the 1948 campaign rolling tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Elks Meet Start Near

Qualifying for the third annual Salem Elks club sponsored Mid-Willamette Valley golf tournament will end Sunday night, and by then it is expected that almost 250 assorted linksmen will be ready to take their swings for the many prizes being pitched into the huge meet by Lodge No. 336. The club committee, along with course officials, will gather Monday to sort the field into 16-man flights in accordance with the various qualifying tallies.

The six-under-par 66 posted last weekend by Bobby Burns still stands as tops for medalist honors, and that sparkler is almost certain to be still high when qualifying finalists are finished checking in this weekend. Defending champion Jack Russell will be among those who register between now and Sunday night, as will Salem club champ Jim Sheldon and 1946 Mid-Willamette titlist Jack Brande of Lebanon.
