

“Roberta” Promises Interest

Norma Lou Faaborg, who plays the part of Staaborg in the Willamette University Players' production of "Roberta" tonight and Saturday at Salem high school auditorium, was formerly with a light opera company in Hawaii, her native land. A music major, she will sing the play's most popular song, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

Reid Shelton, male lead who plays John in "Roberta," is widely known locally for his work in dramatics and music. He has sung the tenor solo parts with Michael Carolan (who plays Ladselslaw, a Russian nobleman) in the Messiah for two years. Roberta Meyers will play the comedy part of "Schizewenk," the opera singer.

Over 50 are in the cast of the Jerome Kern musical comedy, and in addition, the Willamette university symphony orchestra under the direction of Frank Fisher will furnish the music.

Solo leads in the play are all voice majors and the play, noted for its enduring song hits, should be one of unusual excellence.

In addition to the musical portion of the play, a short-style show is being put on by Miller's as a part of the regular action, which takes place in a dress shop in Paris.

The play is under the direction of Lloyd Jones.
