Valley Obituaries

William H. Looney

ALBANY—Funeral services for William H. Looney, 80, who died in an Albany nursing home May 8, following a stroke, will be held from Fisher Funeral home at 2 o'clock, Tuesday, May 11. Burial will be in Riverside.
 Born in Linn county March 5, 1868, Looney was the son of Anthony and Mary Looney, pioneers of the early 1840s, and had spent the greater part of his life on the old Looney farm in Linn county. He lived for a brief time at Upper Soda and at Cascadia. Looney was a retired farmer.

On Oct. 9, 1889, in Albany, he was married to Catherine Acherman, who died in 1931. Surviving are four sons and two daughters, Myrtle J. and Jed Looney of Albany, Russell Looney of Colfax, Wash., William Del Looney of Jefferson, Mrs. Myrtle Long of Cascadia and Mrs. Florence Michaelson of Walla Walla, Wash.; a brother, Virgil E. Looney of Albany, and a sister, Mrs. Elphia Freerksen of Hollywood, Calif.; 14 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

PARRISH JUNIOR HIGH Mixer Held

"Print day," the day when girls all wear their spring dresses or skirts and blouses, was held Friday at Parrish and was the occasion for an after-school mixer. Refreshments included pop and slices, and entertainment featured dancing, bingo and movies. Collect $40
 Parrish's contribution to the cancer drive totalled $40 when all receipts were in on Friday.

'Laws Repeal' Group Urged

The "book" that a judge might throw at some unwary offender would be lightened by elimination of some of Oregon's "horse-and-buggy" laws if high state officials have their way. Some have indicated that they will ask the 1949 state legislature to create a so-called "laws repeal committee" with authority to recommend removing of laws which are seldom if ever used.

The last such group, serving during the 1927 session, succeeded in wiping out more than 200 statutes, including several that dealt with old-time saloon regulation. Records show that it was headed by L. L. Swan of Albany, then a state representative.

Officials urge that the committee should be continued for two years to give members ample time to study the code. Then, they said, Oregon laws should be recodified.

4 Corners Scouts Hosts for Mothers At Luncheon Party

FOUR CORNERS—Four Corners Girl Scouts troop 42, Mrs. Gerald Wing, leader, and Auburn Brownie troop 63, Mrs. Roy Fowler leader, Mrs. C. A. Barnett, assistant leader, held a joint mother and daughter luncheon Saturday, May 8, at Four Corners Community hall. Tables formed in a hollow square were spring-like in their decorations of pastel green crepe paper and bowls of tulips and lilacs. Place cards made by Mrs. Roy Fowler were miniature picket fences with shell flowers. The girls sang "Whip-poor-will" and "White Coral Bells." An original play was presented by Janet Kleen, Aud-

Heavy Bidding Probable Here

Officials predicted Monday that not less than seven bids for construction of the proposed new $2,000,000 state office building would be received Friday, when the deadline for accepting proposals expires. Ten contractors have asked for copies of the plans.

In event the bids are within the estimate, a contract for construction probably will be awarded later this month. Funds for construction will be borrowed from state account and be repaid from rentals. Architects estimated it would require 18 months to complete construction operations.

State Officials Back from Trip

Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry, candidate to succeed himself at the republican primary election, returned here Monday from a six-day tour of southern and western Oregon.

Gov. John H. Hall, also a candidate, was expected to return to his desk early today after nearly two weeks' absence. He was ill for several days in Portland.

Attorney General George Neuner returned Monday after a swing through eastern and central Oregon. He is a candidate to succeed himself.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR EVERY BUSINESS AND PROFESSION LIES IN Perpetuating TIMBER

Timber is a crop. Once harvested, another crop can be grown. Oregon has 23,000,000 acres of timber—the greatest stand of any state in the union. This great industry employs 76,000 workers. More than that, it supports not only lumbermen, but merchants, professional men, farmers and workers of all kinds.
 But even an industry as great as this is only temporary unless we look to the future. However, the forest industry of Oregon can be made permanent by the use of plain business sense: KEEP OREGON FOREST LANDS GROWING FOREST CROPS. The forester calls the orderly production of forest crops — "SUSTAINED YIELD."

Our timber industry can have a permanent supply. The answer is simple — keep Oregon's forest lands growing forest crops. Already federal lands are managed for permanent forest production. This plan of "Sustained Yield" will insure a permanent supply without interfering with our overall lumber industry, if private forest lands are similarly managed.
 Forest Conservation, Inc. organized by a group of far-sighted timber operators, offers you facts on "Sustained Yield." Learn for yourself the importance of a permanent timber supply for continued prosperity. Write today for detailed information.
