GERVAIS—Chamber of Commerce met Monday at the high school. Petitions are now ready for signatures of residents of this area for bus service through Gervais by either Trailways or Greyhound. Albert Bauman is chairman handling the matter. Discussion was held on a neon sign directing traffic to Gervais at the crossroads at Highway 99E. J. A. H. Dodd, district manager of Portland Gas and Coke company, spoke on "Community Building Through Industrial Development."

Robert Jones, Chamber of Commerce president, said plans will be presented by the Southern Pacific company relating to a drainage system to be effective in the territory parallel with its tracks north to Woodburn; south to Brooks and west to the Oregon Electric line.

Industrial survey has been made of this area which shows that in grain farming seven farmers produce 50 per cent of the grain and control 3,000 acres; ten farmers raise 75 per cent of the seeds grown in the community; eight farmers are in the dairy industry and produce about 80 per cent of that product. Other industries supported by the community are berry growing, stock raising, hops, vegetables, logging, trucking, carpentry, cannery work and a number of others.
